ST. JOHN'S SCHOOL TO OPEN TUESDAY

RELIGIOUS AND SECULAR TRAINING GIVEN

Rev. H. H. A. Harthun
St. John's Lutheran School will open Tuesday, September 7, 9 a. m. Teachers in charge are to be Messrs. Ed. M. Strenfert and Clarence H. Zimbrick. New pupils expected 9. Anticipated total enrollment: 93. The school rooms have been renovated. With the aid of the P.T.A. of St. John's a new set of maps and a variety of busy-work helps have been acquired. Mr. Zimbrick is now making his home with the Max Schultz family on Wentworth avenue.

The primary purpose of the Christian Day School is thoroughly to instruct our boys and girls in the Christian religion. We endeavor to send them out into life endowed with a real and lasting character. Such character can be obtained only through instruction in religion. It is our firm conviction that there is no real education without religion.

Coupled with the religious training is a thorough secular training. We aim to rear our children into good and useful citizens. We share the opinion of Daniel Webster: "Whatever makes man good Christians makes them also good citizens."

In our school we are, therefore, fulfilling a spiritual as well as a patriotic duty. A child that learns to reverence and trust in God will also respect the government and the laws of the country it calls its own.

William Kraegel Still At Trinity

Mr. William Kraegel, remains the teacher of Trinity Lutheran school of Oak Glen, which opens its regular classes Tuesday morning, September 7, at 9 o'clock. Mr. Kraegel will have about forty-two students under his care and will hold classes up to and including the eighth grade.

Considerable improvement has been made at Trinity school during the summer. The building has been repaired and redecorated, inside and out, as has been the Trinity church and parsonage. New porches both front and back have been added to the parsonage.

KOSSELKE-SCHULTZ VOWS SPOKEN WED.

Wedding vows were taken by Miss Rose Kosselke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kosselke of Washington street, and Harry Schultz, son of Mr. William Schultz of Cedar Lake, at an early morning service conducted by Rev. Father Burke of St. Ann's church Wednesday, September 1. The beautiful double ring ceremony was performed at 7:45 a. m.

The wedding party entered the church, which was attractively decorated with garden flowers, to the strains of "I Love You Truly" played by the church organist, and the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played softly during the reading of the services. Yellow gold rings were used. Miss Dorothy DeBold of Hammond acted as bridesmaid and Anthony Klyczek of Indiana Harbor was best man.

The bride was charming in a floor length gown of white taffeta, fashioned with a hip length flaring faeket to harmonize with the flare of the graceful skirt. Huge puff sleeves added a style note. A large white picture hat completed the ensemble. The bridal bouquet was of white roses.

Miss DeBold wore a floor length frock of blue chiffon with an attractive shoulder cape. A blue and yellow sash was accented by a beaddress of yellow leaves. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

A wedding breakfast, for the bridal party only, was served following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Schultz will make their home in Lansing, using part of the house occupied by Mrs. Schultz's parents on Washington street. Mr. Schultz is employed at the Inland Steel company.

PETER C. JABAAY DIES TUESDAY AFTER OPERATION

Peter C. Jabaay, 41, of Munster, contractor and for the past eight years chief of the Munster fire department, died Tuesday morning, August 31, at St. Margaret's hospital following an appendix operation. Death occurred at 5 a. m. and was partly attributed to heart trouble.

A life-long resident of Munster, Mr. Jabaay is well known in this entire community and his passing will be deeply felt by all. Surviving him are his wife, Mary, two daughters and four sons; his mother, Mrs. Cornelius Jabaay; one sister, Mrs. Peter Bult and two brothers, William and Dingeman.

The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon from the home at 1:30 and from the Lansing Christian Reformed church at 2 o'clock. Rev. Cornelius DeLeeuw will officiate. Burial will take place in the Oak Ridge cemetery in Oak Glen.

TO INAUGURATE CHANGE IN LOCAL SCHOOL PLAN

WILL TAKE NO BEGINNERS IN FEBRUARY

Lansing public schools will open Tuesday with fifteen teachers on the faculty and a slight change in the system of classes. This is one more teacher than last year, placing six teachers at Coolidge school instead of the previous five.

The change in classes will affect none of the present grades. The new ruling, which is standard in many schools throughout the country, affects only beginners. There will be no beginners admitted to school at the mid-year semester in February as in former years. All beginners will enter school Tuesday, September 7. Children reaching the age of six years before or during September, October and November will be accepted.

This ruling will in no way affect children already graded for the mid-year semester. Eight A students will be graduated from the school when they have completed their course. It will require seven years before the new plan is in complete operation and there are no mid-year graduates.

An additional class is to be established at the Coolidge building, 7B, the first semester and both 7B and 7A the second semester.

Only an approximate estimate can be made this week as to the number of students who will register in the public school here this fall, but it is believed that the number will be six hundred or more. Many new homes in town and a general shift in population during the summer will undoubtedly mean considerable change in the enrollment at school.

Of the fifteen teachers to be employed here this year there remains two still to be selected by the board before the opening of classes Tuesday. Both new teachers will likely be for Coolidge school. At present the faculty list includes the following, Indiana avenue: Miss Swiderski, first grade; Miss Battell, second grade; Miss Van Weelden, third grade; Miss Sidensticker, fourth grade; Miss Ryan, fifth grade; Miss Kinsley, sixth grade; Mr. Hiland, Mr. Laybold, Miss Laingor and Mr. Crawl, upper grades. Coolidge school: Miss Boutin, Miss Melser, Miss Rylands and Miss Mays.

Classes have not been assigned at Coolidge school pending the hiring of two more teachers. There may be some change in the above listing when the other teachers are known.

Mr. Crawl continues as superintendent. School on Tuesday will be for registration and will convene for only a few hours, leaving the rest of the day for the teachers to work out class schedules.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HONORS TEACHERS

Primary classes of the First Reformed Sunday School presented Miss Gladys Kooy with a beautiful bible as a token of appreciation for her services to the Sunday school. Miss Kooy, who is leaving shortly for Central College, Mich., where she will study to be a missionary, has been a teacher in the primary department of the Sunday school for the past three years.

NEW CITIZENS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Boomsma of 167th street have announced the birth of a daughter, Sunday August 22. The child has been named Betty Lorraine.

Open Christian School Tuesday

Two hundred and fifteen children are expected to enroll at the Christian School which will open Tuesday, September 7. Mr. Nicholas Yff remains as principal of the school.

Six teachers are employed by this school which carries the eight elementary grades and includes Christian instruction. Of the six, two are new this year, Miss Clara Van Til who will teach fifth and sixth grades and Miss Wilma Eldersvelt who will have grades one and two.

Other members of the staff are Miss Ida Jabaay, Miss Johanna Kats and Mr. Walter DeJong.

ESTABLISH NEW PRECINCT HERE

A new election precinct and voting polls is to be established within the village of Lansing according to information received this week. In all probability the new voting polls will be located in the Methodist church at Chicago avenue and Ridge Road.

This precinct will be township precinct number 17. Walter Kegebein has been named judge with Margaret Latulipe and Richard Wright as deputies.

The other precincts in the village will remain the same as of former years, precinct number 16 located at the village hall, Lansing with Anna Jones as judge and Louise Kosselke and Evert Schultz as deputies. Precinct number 18 at the Ridgeway Motor Sales, Torrence and Indiana avenues, Oak Glen, with Maris Harding as judge and Mrs. Carl Rahn and Charles C. Schultz as deputies.

Precinct boundaries are as follows: State line to Burnham avenue, precinct number 16, to vote at the village hall, Burnham avenue to School street, precinct number 17, to vote at the Methodist church, School street to the western village limits, precinct number 18, to vote at Ridgeway Motors. North and south precinct boundaries are the town limits.

Death Claims Mrs. Triezenberg

Mrs. Fred Triezenberg, 26, who was taken suddenly ill last Friday, passed away at St. Margaret's hospital Wednesday night about eleven o'clock. Death, according to a statement made today by Dr. Van Drunen, the attending physician, was due to staphylococcus meningitis, which is always fatal but absolutely not contagious.

While definite funeral arrangements have not been completed, the service will in all probability be held Saturday afternoon from the First Reformed church with Rev. Rozeboom officiating.

Mrs. Triezenberg, who was the former Anna Vroom, leaves to mourn her passing her husband of less than one year, three sisters, Mrs. James Homans, Mrs. Tom Van Dyke and Clara Vroom, three brothers, Conrad, Wallace and John, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vroom.

BAPTIZE KRELL INFANT SUNDAY

Christening services for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Krell were conducted by Rev. H. H. A. Harthun during the English service of St. John's Lutheran church Sunday morning.

The child was given the name of Linda Mae with Mr. Conrad Gleim and Mrs. Jacob Krass standing sponsor for her.

TOWNSHIP UNDER PERMANENT REG- ISTRATION LAW

NEW SYSTEM GIVES HOME RULE TO TOWNS AND CITIES

Under the terms of new laws enacted by the last session of the legislature, permanent registration of voters will be effective in all Illinois counties with population over 500,000. Thornton township being in Cook county, naturally comes under this new law. September 27 and October 5 have been named as registration days.

Permanent registration, according to Michael J. Flynn, county clerk, is the most painless and most nearly foolproof ever devised.

"Under this system," Mr. Flynn said, "home rule is guaranteed for each community. It will practically stamp out fraudulent registration. Each registrant will fill out three cards. One card, the original or master card, goes to the county clerk's office for permanent filing. The second card becomes the property of the county election clerk, and the third card is turned over to the village or city clerk.

"This is where the home rule comes in. The village or city, having on hand the third card, can hold, whenever it pleases, a local election without waiting for a general or county election. Many times a village will vote on an important proposition at a general election and because of the great length of the ballot it will be missed or passed over entirely by the local voters."

Under this system the ballots will be shorter, women will not be required to give their age. Some of the points stressed in the new registration are: persons naturalized by virtue of their own papers must furnish to the registration

Great crowds thronged the local airport all day, both days, to catch a glimpse of this new high speed ship, which will be entered in the Bendix air race in September.

Brought to the Lansing airport late Friday evening, two flights were made over the local field Saturday and two on Sunday, by the Meteor and some mechanical adjustments made. Col. Turner left Tuesday in the plane for Los Angeles where he will enter the annual Bendix trophy race from there to Cleveland.

CONGRESSIONAL HISTORY

The first session of the 75th Congress of the United States has passed into history. As was forecast at its beginning, it was the scene of some of the most bitter verbal battling of the post-war era. It deliberated some of the most important measures ever laid before the legislative branch of the government. Dominated as it was by an overwhelming party majority, it closed amid increasing inter-party strife that may revolutionize the existing two-party system.

First, what did Congress do? It appropriated about $9,400,000,000. It enacted a long list of major bills including: Continuation of the RFC; extension of the CCC; extension of the Department of Agriculture's marketing agreement authority; continuation of the reciprocal trade agreement policy; approval of a liberal pension system for railroad workers; passed a bill designed to aid tenant farmers; provided that Supreme Court Justices of long service may retire and receive full active pay, $20,000 a year, for life.

Perhaps more important is what Congress did not do—for it is here that the seeds of discord and anger sprouted. At the beginning of the session, the Administration had a vast and ambitious "must" legislative program the President wished enacted into law. The majority leader, the late Senator Robinson, used every conceivable tactic to force the Senate to approve this program. So did the new leader, Senator Barkley, who took command in the closing days. Yet the program suffered almost 100 per cent defeat.

Key measure of the President's plan was the bill to enlarge the Supreme Court. This bill was finally withdrawn after a campaign against it led by Senator Wheeler of Montana, long considered a "radical" legislator.

The President sponsored a bill, introduced by Senator Norris, to create seven more regional electric authorities of the TVA type. This bill was never brought to a vote, and was deferred until the January session.

The President wished a great low-cost housing measure. A housing measure was passed in the last week of the session—but it was not nearly so ambitious as the White House had advocated, and does not fulfill the President's demands.

The President favored a wage and hour bill for industry which was considerably stricter than the defunct NRA. It did not pass.

The President asked passage of a bill to reorganize the independent government bureaus—such as the ICC, the Federal Trade Commission, etc.—that, in effect, would have placed them under the direct control of the Executive. This bill was deferred and kept from a vote.

Finally, the President nominated strong New Dealer Senator Black for the Supreme Court vacancy caused by the retirement of Justice Van Devanter. Senator Black's nomination was approved by a heavy majority—but it is significant that, for the first time in fifty years, the "tradition" of approving a senatorial appointment to a judicial office by a unanimous vote was disregarded. A number of senators denounced Mr. Black on the floor.

Result: The 75th Congress showed itself to be largely anti-New Deal, with the chief defections in the Democratic ranks coming from Southern and Western senators. No one, whether he be for or against the President's program, can deny that the majority party is split wide open. And it seems certain that in January, when the second session starts, the "rebel" movement will be much farther advanced than at present.

Highly significant was an episode occurring on the last day in the Senate. Senator Guffey, Democrat of Pennsylvania, has openly suggested that the President use his influence to defeat Democratic senators opposing his measures in the next primaries. Four senators rose and poured, in the words of an A.P. dispatch, "vials of contempt and denunciation" upon Senator Guffey. The four were Senators Wheeler, Burke, O'Mahoney and Holt. Wheeler and Burke, though they disagree on many issues, are considered to be among the ablest minds in the party. This incident accurately indicates the way the wind blows inside the majority party.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Business Week has compiled an interesting survey showing what employed wage earners' families earn and how they spend it.

Highest wage is on the Pacific Coast, where data compiled for Seattle shows that the chief wage earner of the average family takes in $1,508 a year. The average number of workers per family is 1.18, and gross income is $1,604.

A greater gross income is shown for New York—$1,743—but this is due to a larger average number of workers per family, 1.62, and the chief wage earner receives but $1,357.

EXTRA! EXTRA!

Popular Things
To all appearances the lowly hamburger sandwich has become the most popular thing under the sun. Its ardent advocates include old and young, big and little.

Vacations have enjoyed an unusual popularity this summer. A good indication as to the popularity of returned good times.

And then there are fish stories, which reminds us:

Fish Story
Jackie Thaldorf, visiting his grandmother has produced the very best fish story we have heard in the village recently. It seems Jackie decided to try his luck with a baby hop toad or frog, we forgot just which. He had no more than dropped his hook, thus baited, into the water when he saw a pike of no mean size approaching already for a strike. But Jackie struck first, letting the oar of his boat descend quickly he scored a knockout, and reached in and lifted Mr. Pike out of the water with his hands, leaving the frog intact. Now you anglers who have had your sport with the pike can think what you like, but the story is true, for we had it from Jackie's mother, who had it from her mother, who saw the feat and cooked the fish for the young fisherman. Hudson Lake was the scene.

Martin Rispens, just returned from northern Wisconsin, after a week of good luck, has some authentic tales of how they are biting up that way.

Charley McCarthy, the radio dummy, (pardon us) pulled the best one the other evening tho, when he told of the one he got AWAY FROM.

Comment
Let's hope Munster has better luck getting dredging done with their WPA funds, if they get the funds, than the Illinois clean streams committee, or who ever the sponsor of the local project was, did on this side of the line. As it now stands the Little Calumet (stagnant) is a monument to the inefficiency that smells to the sky.

Coach Dorais, of Detroit must have a good comfortable feeling inside knowing more than three million folks were interested enough in his work to give him a boost.

A card from Boise, Idaho, carries the suggestion that the picture on the reverse side be shown to the local zoning commission. The picture is on display if any of the gentlemen would like a look, which reminds us:

Of the prominent local lady who is holding her breath in hopes it is true that the local Lions are interested in a village playground.

Roaring
We surmise that is what Wilber Canaga did when he learned what he missed by not being present at the last Lions meeting. Seems that "Pop" Wulfling is a good picker, when it comes to pulling names, with the third name to be the lucky one. First it is the president, then his own and third Canaga, all misses.

STATE TO CONSIDER INDUSTRIAL HEALTH

A close study of occupational health hazards in Illinois is to be made by the state health department. The inspection being planned for factories will include the sampling of air for dust, spray and fumes that are dangerous to health. The results of this survey are expected to lay the foundation for a system of industrial hygiene that will effectively protect the approximately 1,000,000 workers in the state whose occupations are actually or potentially hazardous to health.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, a nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure on the sea, built by her father and divided in two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed a hitherto unknown will with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House, get friendly with Brooke and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reyburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce a new play locally. After the Thanksgiving dinner Brooke tells Mark that little of Mrs. Dane's silver collection is left. Jerry Field and his sister Daphne drop in and announce they will be neighbors for the winter. Sam adds them to the cast of his play.

CHAPTER—IV—Continued

Mark Trent stopped speaking to stare at the ceiling. Had a door banged overhead, or had he imagined the sound? The servants, Taku and Kowa, were in the kitchen at this time of day; they wouldn't be on the third floor anyway, he had not had that opened up, plenty of room below for Jed and himself.

A man entered the room with a purposeful stride. He was ample of jowl, slightly opulent as to waistline; he had the flinty eyes of an eagle who can stare straight at the sun. A sense of force was his outstanding characteristic.

"Here I am, Mark. That Jap outside wanted to bow me in, but I shooed him off." Inspector Bill Harrison's voice was surprisingly soft with a persuasive inflection.

"Glad you've come, Inspector. This is my friend Jed Stewart."

Inspector Harrison nodded. "How are you, Mr. Stewart. Does he know about the silver, Mark?" He lowered himself into a deep chair and accepted a cigar.

"Yes, he's staying here to help me—us solve the mystery."

"What else have you lost?"

"Why do you think we've lost anything else?"

"Would you two city guys come to this burg to stay just to find a lot of silverware?"

"It's more than mere silverware; the pieces are antiques of great value."

Inspector Harrison pulled himself from the enticing crimson depths to his feet.

"All right, Mark, have it your own way, but I ain't mixin' up in a case where folks are holding out on me. I work best when the interested party works with me. Get that?"

Mark's laugh was quick and disarming.

"Hold everything, Bill Harrison; you can't walk out on us like that. Sit down again. Jed, tell him what Mrs. Gregory told us about the will she witnessed. You understand, Inspector, that there may be nothing to it—so it's off the record."

"Say, Mark, do you suppose I climbed up on the force by talking my head off? I play the rules. Spill it, Mr. Stewart."

Stewart repeated Mrs. Gregory's astonishing announcement that she had witnessed a will of Mary

Amanda Dane's of a date later than the will allowed; told of the decision of Mark and himself to turn detectives and of their absolute unsuccess to date.

Inspector Bill Harrison blew a perfect smoke ring.

"Did Mrs. Gregory say there was anyone else present but Mrs. Dane and the other witnesses when she signed?"

"No."

Mark Trent's answer was nothing short of explosive. The inspector's soft grudging laugh, in such marked contrast to his bird-of-prey eyes, brought guilty color to his face. It wasn't keeping back information not to tell that Brooke Reyburn had driven in that afternoon just as Mrs. Gregory had driven out from Lookout House, was it?

Inspector Bill Harrison rose. With a cigar tucked in one corner of his mouth, he nodded.

"I'll be going. Guess I've got all the dope. Don't give that Henri Jacques and his wife the idea that you've missed the silver. Let it drop-out of their minds. When you have any news, come to headquarters, don't phone. That reminds me. Know anything about the people who've started the filling station here on the point?"

"No. But I understand that Henri Jacques is recommending them."

"Oh, he is? That Henri's just naturally helpful, ain't he? Well, I must get back." He added in his soft persuasive voice:

"Whenever you're ready to come across with the name of the other party who was in the neighborhood of Lookout House the day that last will of Mrs. Dane's was signed, Mark, I'm just across the causeway. I'll be seeing you."

"Don't go yet, Bill!"

He mustn't leave thinking that he and Jed were holding out on him, Mark realized.

Jed Stewart grabbed Mark's shoulder.

"Hold on, Mark. See who's here!"

Mark Trent turned. Surprise brought him to his feet, wiped the smile from his lips. That couldn't be Lola on the threshold! It was Eun, her name was now, Lola Hunt, he must remember.

"Say, Mark, I'll be making my get-away."

He nodded response to Bill Harrison's mumble. Knew when he opened the door which led to the print room and vanished. Evidently the inspector didn't care to meet Lola. Who did? With the question Mark thrust his hands hard into his coat pockets and took a step forward.

"Well?"

The sound was more a growl than a word, he realized, as he looked steadily at the woman who had been his wife. Had been. At last he had come to think of her in the past tense. It had taken three years to accomplish that. The shame, the humiliation, the unbearable heartache he had suffered in the years they had lived together swept over him in a sickening tide. What did she want now? She was the type of woman who constantly and everlastingly wanted something. Wasn't he giving her enough? There had been no justice in his giving her anything, but when she had written him that her current husband was out of a job and that she was hungry, what could he do but make her an allowance till the man found work? Her clothing had a cheap smartness; the dark brilliance of her eyes was intensified by artificial shadows; her skin was thick and flushed; her short black hair needed trimming; her mouth drooped at the corners. She pouted lips which resembled nothing so much as a bloody smear.

"Don't stare at me as if I were a ghost from out a purple past, Mark. I told your Jap that I was an old friend, that I wanted to surprise you. I hate to keep the gentlemen standing. Won't you ask me to sit down?"

Without waiting for an answer, she sank into the large chair before the fire.

"Still palc you two, aren't you? Funny how much longer friendship lasts between men than love between a man and woman. Mark, I came here to talk to you. Jed, you may go."

Mark Trent's hand closed on Stewart's arm with a grip which turned his nails white.

"Jed will stay and hear what you have to say. Surely we can have no secrets from the man who saw us through the divorce court."

She shrugged. "All right with me. I've nothing to lose. Thought you might object to having what I say get on the air."

"Methinks the lady is implying that I'm a gossip."

"I don't like the twist you gave that 'lady,' Jed Stewart. Don't shake your head at the Jap, Mark."

Why shouldn't I have a cup of tea with you? I'm famished. Place it here."

The servant looked at Mark Trent before he pressed the springs which released the legs of the tray he was carrying and set it before the woman. He brought in a muffin stand with sandwiches and cakes.

"You needn't wait," she dismissed the man as if she were the mistress of the house. Mark nodded confirmation as the Jap's eyes sought his. Did he know that the woman so dictatorially giving orders had been his wife?

Side by side the two men watched her, watched her restless hands. Once she had been told by a stag that her hands were like pale butterflies, Mark remembered, and they had fluttered ever since. In the silence the tick of the clock set the air vibrating; the fire snapped and blazed cheerily; the tide against the ledges boomed a dull undertone.

Lola Hunt flung a crumpled dolly to the table.

"Now a cigarette, Mark, and I shall be ready to proceed with my story."

"Sorry, haven't any."

She raised brows which had been plucked to a thin arch.

"You do want to get rid of me, don't you. Well, I strive to please."

She rose and crossed to the desk. With a glance over her shoulder, she opened a box of Chinese lacquer.

"You see I still know my way around. Oh, by the way, your aunt's legatee is living at Lookout House. I hear. Henri wrote me—"

"Henri!"

"Yes. I always got on with Henri, perhaps because he knew that I detested your aunt as much as he did. He wrote that Miss Reyburn evidently didn't like his wife and himself, asked if I would give him a reference in case they lost the position."

Was that all Henri Jacques had written, Mark wondered. There was a hint of mockery in Lola's voice and eyes. What was behind that letter? He watched her thoughtfully as she perched on the corner of the desk, crossed her knees and lighted a cigarette. She blew a ring of smoke toward the two men standing back to the fire.

"Forgot these were in the box, didn't you, Mark? You really should do something about your memory; it's slipping." Her eyes and voice sharpened. "Well, here's my news. Bert Hunt—he's my present husband, in case you've forgotten—is planning to go into business in the residential part of this town, has gone, in fact. I shall help when he's rushed or—indisposed. When I heard that you'd opened this house, I thought perhaps you wouldn't care to have your former wife working—I've been warned that I've been taking chances with my heart—that perhaps you'd like to buy us off. With $20,000 we could go abroad and stay for a time. Don't stand there like a bronze Nemesis ready to swoop. Nothing shameful about any kind of a job these days, is there?"

Mark Trent laughed. It was not an especially merry burst of sound, but it would serve.

"Do you call extortion a job? Nothing doing, Lola. Your heart! You've used your weak heart as an excuse to get what you wanted for years. Why should I deprive the town of Hunt's business ability and so charming an assistant?"

She slid to her feet. Her face, which had been blank with amazement at his laugh, went white with anger.

"You mean that you don't mind my working—here?"

"If it's what you like, why should I? But," his face was as colorless as hers, "if you do stay in this town, the allowance I am making you—which, you may remember, is purely voluntary—will stop."

"Are you threatening me?"

"Not for a minute. I'm merely reminding you—"

"Then I'll remind you that it may cost you more—"

"Mrs. Gregory, Miss Reyburn," murmured Kowa at the door.

Mrs. Gregory registered amazement and anger when she saw Lola. Her skin mottled, her eyes flashed as she thumped her cane on the rug and went into action.

"What are you doing in this house, Lola?"

"I might ask you that." Lola Hunt's eyes moved insolently from her to the girl beside her. "Match-making mayhap? As I remember it was one of your passions." Her glance brought color to Brooke Reyburn's face.

"Just as cheap in your answers as ever, aren't you, Lola? Wise-cracking, I believe they call it now. Don't tell me you have taken her back, Mark."

"Taken me back! That's the joke of the week. He couldn't get me back."

Lola Hunt pulled the silver fox cape about her shoulders and drew on the fabric gloves.

"So glad to have met you here, Mrs. Gregory. It will save sending you a card."

Anne Gregory's face took on a purple tint. She thumped her cane on the rug.

"A card! A card to what, you brazen hussy?"

Lola Hunt shrugged. "Don't try to stop her, Mark. She would call a woman who chose to live her life according to modern ideas of marriage, a hussy. You'd know that from her clothes, they're so deliciously Victorian. I really must go."

She stopped on the threshold.

"Dear Mrs. Gregory, I didn't answer your question, did I? The card to which I referred is an invitation to patronize the business which we have started in my old home on the point. You remember that house, I am sure, remember how you and your friends tried to freeze out the girl who came there to live. She didn't freeze, did she? She burned up a few of the husbands and all the lads. Is it any more shocking for me to go into business than for some of your pet socialites to sponsor cigarettes, soap, or bedding in every magazine in the country?"

She turned to Brooke.

"You are Miss Reyburn, aren't you? I'll give you a tip. Had I been left the late, not too lamented, Mary Amanda Dane's money, I would be wondering why her right-ful heir and his lawyer had camped down in the house next to mine, why they were hob-nobbing with Inspector Bill Harrison."

She looked back over her shoulder.

"Think over my proposition, Mark, darling. It may be cheaper for you—in the end."

CHAPTER V

Lola Hunt's malicious laugh lingered eerily in the silence which followed her theatrical exit from the room. Somewhere a door closed with a bang which clanged through the house.

Her spiteful warning struck like an irritating burr in Brooke Reyburn's mind. She glanced at the two men standing back to the fire: Stewart's eyes, still on the doorway, smoldered with anger; the tortured look in Mark Trent's hurt her unbearably; even with his pride knifed, his courtesy had been invincible. The woman had warned him also. Why think of him, she asked herself angrily. Better have her mind on what Mrs. Hunt had insinuated. Had those two men come to live in this house because they suspected her, Brooke Reyburn, of dishonestly influencing Mary Amanda Dane? If so, what could they do about it? Drag her into court? Was that why Inspector Harrison had been with them? It was fantastic, incredible, yet hadn't she wondered times without number why they, city men so obviously, should have come to this village for the winter?

As if her thoughts had drawn his eyes to her, Mark Trent regretted:

"Sorry, Miss Reyburn, that you should have been bored with a scene."

He pressed a bell beside the fireplace. With a little snort of anger, Anne Gregory settled heavily into a chair and flung back her sable cape. The color of her face suggested a red-hot balloon. Temper and voice blew up.

"How about me, Mark? Do you think I liked meeting that shameless woman here? Shameless! Perhaps I'm too hard on Lola. She was right. We old residents did our best to snub her when she came here to live, and she did have every man in the place parking on her doorstep sooner or later. And what did Lola mean, she hoped I'd patronize the business she and her husband were about to start?"

"She didn't say what sort of business, did she? Let's forget her. Let me take your coat, Miss Reyburn."

Trent stood behind Brooke as the servant appeared in the doorway.

"Kowa, take out the tray and bring fresh tea."

Mrs. Gregory removed her gloves and resumed cross-examination.

"Did Lola really mean that she and her present husband are going into business in this village?"

"What's strange in that? It's being done every day." Mark Trent crossed his arms on the mantel and stared at the fire.

In spite of her suspicion of his motive in coming to live next door to Lookout House, Brooke's sympathy surged out to him. Why didn't Mrs. Gregory drop the subject of the Hunts? Couldn't she see that he was sick at heart over the whole sordid situation? With more kindness than finesse, Jed Stewart plunged into the breach.

"Has that pair of Japanese goldfish I ordered for you arrived yet, Mrs. Gregory?"

Anne Gregory looked up at him with eyes made shrewd by years of living, by joys, by uprooted affections, by hopes unrealized. She shook her head.

"You can't sidetrack me, young man, even with goldfish. I mean to get at what Lola is after—not merely customers, I am sure of that, she was here to hound Mark. I know her. I'll see that she doesn't get a license to carry on business on this point. I still have influence. Miss Reyburn will pour the tea," she directed, as Kowa approached her with the replenished tray.

Involuntarily Brooke looked at Mark Trent. He smiled.

Wear Small Sleeves in Wedding Party

DEAR Mrs. Post: My sister would like to know what features make the women attendants' dresses different at an evening wedding, since you have said that it is not proper for women to wear cut-out low necks and sleeveless evening dresses to church.

Answer: The only requirement for evening dresses worn by the wedding party in church is that they have at least very small sleeves and that backs be cut moderately, or else have matching jackets which can be worn in church. The evening effect is also helped by the richness of the materials. This last is not infallible since materials of all varieties are worn at daytime and evening weddings.

Do the Natural Thing; You'll Likely Be Right

DEAR Mrs. Post: The other afternoon two gentlemen called on me in regard to a business transaction. After greeting them I sat down, assuming that they would do likewise. But instead they continued to talk, remaining standing. Feeling somewhat embarrassed, I got up again and we finished our conversation all standing until they left fifteen minutes later. Should I have asked them to be seated? I supposed when a lady sat down a gentleman seated himself without any further gesture on her part.

Answer: I think in this case it would have been natural to ask them to sit down. It is true that ordinarily people sit down unless they are staying for only a moment of time.

The Double Celebration.

DEAR Mrs. Post: I have two sisters, both married on the same day almost 25 years ago. One sister's husband is still living and the other one's husband died several years ago. We would like to do something in honor of the double anniversary, but do you think it will be cruel to the widowed sister?

Answer: Certainly it would be impossible to think of the anniversary as a double celebration. But, on the other hand, I see no reason why you should deprive the happy sister of her share. However, the least you say about the anniversary of the widowed sister the less difficult you are likely to make the day for her. And if she is not to be present at the party, it would be nice if you sent her a few flowers with your love but with no reference to the day.

College Dancing Age.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Do you consider it incorrect for a girl of fifteen to go to a college dance? I have a very good friend who is four years older and he has asked me to come to a dance at his college. His mother would go with me and we would stay together at school. Mother is debating about letting me go because she is afraid I will be the youngest girl at the dance and perhaps she will be criticized for having let me go.

Answer: The only possible objection to your going is the not too certain one that people seeing you at this dance will perhaps afterwards imagine that you are two or three years older than you really are. I see no impropriety in your going since a college dance is after all not very far removed from a school dance, and the girls who go to it are not necessarily grown.

BEDTIME STORY

SAMMY JAY TELLS PETER RABBIT HE IS SORRY

When you've done a thing that's wrong just go and say you're sorry. Don't let an untruth drag along—just go and say you're sorry. There's nothing else will clear the way. And brighter make the passing day when you have done or said or thought a thing more unkind than you ought than just to say you're sorry.

YOU remember how Peter Rabbit could find no one to believe him when he told about the great, strange tracks which he had found in the snow deep in the Green Forest at the very end of winter. Of course you do. And you remember how Sammy Jay had made fun of Peter and teased him until Peter would hardly put his head outside of the dear Old Briar Patch. Now Sammy was learning just how Peter had felt. To be sure, it was nothing new to Sammy to have people doubt what he said. Usually he wouldn't have minded in the least. But now he had such wonderful news—news of a big, black stranger who had come to live in the Green Forest—and it was dreadful to have everybody smile and whisper to one another, "He's crazy."

It was just as bad when Blacky the Crow saw the stranger and tried to tell about him, for no one believed Blacky, and every one thought him crazy, too. But all of a sudden Peter Rabbit remembered those great tracks he had tried so hard to forget, and right away he was as excited as Sammy Jay and Blacky the Crow. When Sammy told about the great claws Peter fairly shouted.

"It's the stranger who made those tracks, just as sure as I'm alive!" he cried. "Now, perhaps you still think I had bad dreams, Sammy Jay, when I told you about those strange tracks!"

Sammy looked at Peter and hung his head for just a minute. "I'm sorry, Peter," said he, "for all the mean things I said and for not believing your story. I truly am. I know just how you felt when you had great news and no one would believe it. No one but my cousin, Blacky the Crow, believes me now unless it is you. Do you, Peter?"

"Of course, I do!" replied Peter promptly. "Didn't I see the tracks? Do you believe that now, Sammy Jay?"

Sammy nodded. "Yes," he replied. "I believe it. But nobody else will excepting Blacky. They just think we all three are crazy."

"They'll Just Think That We All Three Are Crazy."

"But who is the stranger?" persisted Peter.

"Don't know," replied Sammy. "Never have seen any one like him. Why don't you go ask him where he comes from and who he is, Peter?"

"Oh!" cried Peter. "I don't dare. Sammy? You can fly and I can't. You haven't anything to be afraid of. If I could fly I'd go."

First Aid to the Ailing House

ALUMINUM PAINT

ALUMINUM paint is coming into very general use as a priming coat on bare wood, to be finished with any kind of oil paint or of enamel. The liquid part of aluminum paint is varnish, which for satisfaction, should be of high quality; for outside work, spar varnish should be used. The aluminum is in the form of flakes of a fineness that is suited to the work. Aluminum paint should be mixed as it is used, and to make this possible, manufacturers supply it in a double can, the lower and larger part of the can containing the varnish, and the upper and smaller can, the dry aluminum powder. The proportion is about two pounds of the powder to the gallon of varnish.

When aluminum paint is applied, the metal flakes float to the top of the film of varnish. After hardening, the varnish is thus covered with a thin sheet of metal, and it is this that gives aluminum paint its usefulness as an undercoat. The life of paint depends on the firmness with which the undercoat is attached to the surface to which it is applied. The loosening of paint is due to the breaking of this bond. The ultra violet rays of the sun are destructive to the oils in paint, and are one of the causes of paint failure. With the first coat of varnish protected by its surface of aluminum, the bond is given a much longer life than when it is exposed to the destructive violet rays.

Aluminum being opaque, this paint is excellent for a first coat when a surface that is dark in color is to be repainted a lighter color, or white. The aluminum will hide the dark tone, and one coat of paint on top of it may be sufficient to give the desired results. With ordinary paint, at least three coats will usually be needed to hide the dark color underneath.

There is a great difference in aluminum paints, and it is always well worth while to get a high grade. In manufacture, aluminum flakes acquire a fine coating of grease, which if not removed will prevent their close bonding with the varnish. The color will then be gray. In high grades of aluminum flakes or powder, the grease has been removed, and the final color then remains brilliant. I had an experience that showed the difference. A ceiling was finished with aluminum paint, with the idea that it would reflect the light; but to my regret, the tone, instead of having the brilliancy that I expected, was gray. Later, when the ceiling was repaired, I finished the new part with a top quality aluminum paint. This finish was brilliant, and has remained so. In aluminum paint as in almost everything else, high quality is well worth an additional price.

Meaning of Inferiority Complex

By inferiority complex is meant a group of feelings based on a sense of one's inferiority or inability to meet certain situations. An inferiority complex may show itself in many ways. A child may drive himself to success in another field in order to prove his superiority or he may show his inferiority complex by bullying smaller children. The best way to help the victim of such a complex is to aid him in achieving real success in line with his best talents and developing him into a person who is socially acceptable and who has a secure position among his fellows.

FARM TOPICS

GRASSES, LEGUMES USED AS ENSILAGE

Can Be Kept in Condition by Adding Molasses.

By A. C. Kimrey, Extension Dairy Specialist, North Carolina State College.—WNU Service.

With molasses as a preservative, any green crop that will make hay can be stored in a silo without any appreciable loss of feed value.

Corn silage contains substances that act as a preservative, but legumes and grasses do not have enough sugar to ferment properly. By adding molasses to legumes and grasses, the material can be kept in good condition.

The crop can be cut at any stage of maturity and in any kind of weather. However, greater feeding value is obtained if the crop is cut as early in the season as possible without injuring the stand. Cereal crops should be cut when the grain is in the milk stage.

Start cutting early in the morning. If the crop is wet with dew or rain, so much the better. The crop should be put in the silo within a few hours after cutting.

If the crop must remain in the field more than a few hours on a dry day, water should be added as it is blown into the silo.

Around 40 to 45 pounds of molasses should be added to each ton of cereal and grass crops, while 75 to 80 pounds should be added to a ton of legume silage.

The molasses can be added from an elevated barrel by allowing the proper amount to flow through a spigot onto the green material as it is fed into the cutter.

Plumage of Hen Reveals Egg-Producing Capacity

There was a time when farmers sold their ragged and faded birds because of their unsightly appearance and kept the slick-coated, yellow-legged individuals because of their attractiveness. That time is past and the practice is now reversed, asserts a poultryman in the Boston Globe.

The persistence of production is measured very largely by the condition of the plumage during the summer and fall. If the hen lays regularly she usually retains her old feathers, but if for any reason other than sickness or broodiness she stops laying, the feathers begin to drop. This brings on the condition we know as molting.

The order in which the feathers fall is first from the neck, then the back, body, wings and tail. The neck molt is rather common at any season of the year, even in good layers, but if the molt progresses to the back, the primary feathers of the wing generally molt also. The stage is seldom reached unless the hens have entirely ceased laying. Cessation of laying is likely to bring on a general molt.

Farm Notes

A serious problem of the poultry industry is the lack of proper feathering of broilers in many of the heavy breeds.

Thorough grooming of horses cleans and thins the hair and thus reduces sweating and prevents excessive fatigue.

Milk or cream cooled quickly after milking time keeps much better in hot weather than that which is allowed to cool slowly.

About 10 acres out of every 36 acres of crop land in the United States is planted to corn and about one out of each 36 is planted to cotton.

"No. As a matter of fact they're keeping her now."

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND?

YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unsympathetic, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it. When your back aches and your nerves scream, don't take it out on your husband. He can't possibly know how you feel.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Augusta Male Quartet To Sing In South Holland

The renowned Augustana Male Quartet of Augustana college, Rock Island, Illinois, will appear in concert at the First Reformed church of South Holland, on September 12 at 7:30 p. m. under the sponsorship of the Senior League for Service.

This musical group has been acclaimed by critics of the Middle West and East as one of the finest quartets in the collegiate world, as well as an attraction that promises to be close to the top in professional circles in the near future.

During the past two summers the quartet has toured extensively and has gained an enviable reputation in many sections of the nation. Numerous national and local radio broadcasts have spread the name of the Augustana Male Quartet still further, and the present summer tour is an answer to a general demand from territories where they have not yet appeared.

Typical of the comments that the group has received is that of Douglas Craig, arranger for N. B. C. Network from Chicago, who says: "The Augustana Male Quartet is more than worth while hearing. The quartet has that rare, delightful combination of a pleasing, youthful blend of voices, an interesting style of interpretation, and an appealing repertoire."

The quartet has been directed by Henry Veld, and the program will be entirely sacred.

Nourish then your imagination, strengthen your will, and purify your love; for what imagination anticipates shall be achieved, what will pursues shall be done, and what love seeks shall be revealed.

What Do You Know About Health?

By FISHER BROWN and NAT FALK

1. WHO WAS CARL JOSEF EBERTH?

2. CAN NIGHT-BLINDNESS BE CURED?

3. IS IT HEALTHIER TO BE OVERWEIGHT OR UNDERWEIGHT?

Answers:
1. A pioneer physician who discovered the cause of typhoid fever in 1880. This discovery has been the source of many advances in municipal sanitation, immunization and various diagnostic procedures.
2. Yes. Night-blindness (the inability to see objects clearly at night or in faint light) is caused by a lack of Vitamin A in the diet. It can be cured by taking such foods as cream, whole milk, butter, yolk of egg, liver, green leafy and yellow vegetables and cod-liver oil.

3. Medical authorities advise that while it is better for those under 35 to be slightly overweight, it is far better for those over 35 to be somewhat underweight.

MOTOR FATALITIES DROP IN JULY BUT UP FOR YEAR

Motor vehicle fatalities in Illinois dropped 13.1 per cent in July, with 179 deaths, compared to 206 in July, 1936, the state division of highways reports. In spite of this favorable trend for July, the first seven months of 1937 showed 20.9 per cent more deaths from auto accidents than did the same period last year.

NEWS OF ST. JOHN'S WALTHER LEAGUE

Last Sunday, August 29, 1937, the Leaguers enjoyed a beach party at the Indiana Dunes. They left the school house about one o'clock. About forty-five members of the League were in the group. The Leaguers arrived at the Dunes about two o'clock. Some of the Leaguers went swimming while others took the different trails. Those who went in swimming sat on the beach getting a tan and played in the sand.

About six o'clock the Leaguers went to the picnic grove to eat supper. Potato salad, baked ham, pickles, olives, bread, butter and cake were the different things on the menu.

Good Thoughts For Good People

Our human laws are but the copies, more or less imperfect, of the eternal laws so far as we can read them. —Froude

There is but one law for all; namely that law which governs all law,—the law of our Creator, the law of humanity, justice, equity; the law of nature and of nations. —Burke

The people's safety is the law of God. —James Otis

Human law is right only as it patterns the divine. —Mary Baker Eddy

Of law there can be no less acknowledged than that her seat is the bosom of God, her voice the harmony of the world. —Hooker

The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. —Psalms 19

Prints Tune to School Girl Needs

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MYRIADS of gay little print frocks wending their way schoolward is the picture fashion is fashing on the screen for fall. There is really no danger of overdoing the print collection for little daughter, for there are so many varieties of textures and design in the realm of washable prints this season mothers can assemble a wardrobe of prints ranging from playtime and classroom frocks to pretty-pretty party dresses, and then not have too many for occasions that may arise.

From mother's standpoint the new print collections should and will prove all that they should be in supplying fabrics which will insure her child the joy of being well-dressed whatsoever the occasion, because fabricists are bringing out cottons and rayons and linens that have the "looks" of choicest challis and fine crepes.

The thing that intrigues the little folks in regard to prints is that many of the nicest, prettiest prints have been especially designed for them with pictorial motifs that make direct appeal to childhood. Not only are the patterns charming to behold but they are in many instances instructive and entertaining as well. For smaller children there are prints with the letters of the alphabet scattered designfully in allover patterning. Mother Goose figures too, and boats and ships and birds and animals, fruits and flowers done in a way to capture the fancy of a child.

The washable prints developed this season are unique and lovely. It's a series of perfectly charming prints that we have in mind—artistic creations each of which has been inspired by a song. There are fifteen designs in this collection nine of which have been adapted to cotton fabrics and six to rayon. The unique part of it is that these theme song designs use titles of copy-righted songs. What a grand chorus of prints there will be in classroom, at home and in the highways and byways that little girls tread during the coming tangy autumn days! Not that children have a monopoly on these intriguing musical prints for designers are making them up into the smartest-ever housecoats, pajamas and daytime dresses for grown-ups.

Does your little girl love music? If so she'll adore the beruffled frock of new chintz-type print (centered in the illustration) the motif of which is based on "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," a song children know and love. Clever little girl and boy figures holding balloons and other bubble motifs following the position of the notes on the scale with tiny clef signs make the design of this print which is fascinating for young and older folks. The crisp white organdy ruffles and buttons add winsome accents.

The dress to the left is also made of a theme-song "bubble" print. It is a pleasing type for the growing girl. Three narrow ribbon bows positioned on ribbon crossbars set row and row march soldier-like down the front of the bodice. Pleated skirt and demure Peter Pan collar complete this smart style.

The dress to the right reflects a quaint spirit in the lacings up the front, the close-fitting bodice, and the now-so-fashionable "swing skirt." Any girl would love to wear this dress "first day of school." The scattered daisies is a patterning inspired by that familiar song, "Daisy, Daisy, Tell Me Your Answer True"—enough to inspire any little girl wearing this dress to become a prima donna.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

  By VIRGINIA VALE ***

ONCE more Rudy Vallee has shown that he is the greatest talent scout in the radio business. Tommy Riggs, the two-voiced personality who has been appearing on his program the last few weeks has made an outstanding success and will soon have a program of his own.

The brash little girl that Mr. Riggs plays with such devastating humor promises to be as popular one of these days as is Charlie McCarthy, the famous ventriloquist's dummy. Incidentally, the people whom Vallee started on the road to radio success ought to get together and put on a gala program as a tribute to him. It would include such headliners as Walter O'Keefe, Bob Burns, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, and Tommy Riggs. And what a program that would be!

Up in Dennis, Massachusetts, Gertrude Michael appeared on the stage in a play of early Colonial days and made a big hit. A regular parade of automobiles made the long trip from New York to see her, and when she came out on the stage the rafters rung with applause from her Broadway friends. They were saluting her courage in winning a two-year battle with serious illness as well as her fine skill as an actress.

Gertrude Michael

The greatest picture of the year, perhaps of many years, has received a chorus of critical acclaim such as has never been heard before. It is "The Life of Emile Zola" with Paul Muni. As crusader for the oppressed, as the most eloquent and forceful man of his time, Paul Muni gives an inspired performance.

Mona Barrie is the latest screen belle to seek a change from Hollywood on the New York stage. While rehearsing for "Virginia," a great musical spectacle that will open the Center Theater in Radio City, she told me about her last—and she thinks best—picture. It is Jimmie Cagney's "Something to Sing About," in which Mona plays her first real comedy role. She plays a foreign actress with a heavy accent and has a glorious time swooping through scenes in the grand manner. She says that Jimmy is just tops to work with, which makes the verdict practically unanimous.

ODDS AND ENDS—After trying to borrow Kenny Baker, or John Payne, or Jimmy Stewart, or Cary Grant, or Dick Arlen, the producer of Lily Pons' next picture has finally given up the search for a new leading man and given the role to Gene Raymond who played in her last picture. . . . Jack Benny's friends are saving all the reviews of "Artists and Models" which rave about his performance to show him when he returns from Europe. All through the making of the picture he quarreled with the director and objected to his lines and felt utterly dismal over what he expected would be the flop of the year. . . . Joan Crawford likes to run her pictures at home for her young niece to see. The child hails every time she sees Auntie Joan on the screen.

The Mania of 1937
 There have always been manias in the world. A conspicuous one now is the frantic desire to go somewhere quickly and lose your life at it.

Many a man pulls down his character in an effort to build up his reputation.

There are people who end a conversation with you sooner than you want them to, because they have a sensitive fear they are boring you. Undeceive them at once.

People who never want to hear criticism of anything are as fatiguing as those who indulge in nothing else.

Let Bill Farnsworth Pass on Blackburn's View of Joe Louis

(Wilton "Slim" Farnsworth, who devoted 30 years to journalism before deciding to turn to the crasser fields of endeavor, sits in as guest columnist for Hugh Bradley this week. He was a former New York sports editor and is now general manager of the Twentieth Century Sporting club.)

By BILL FARNSWORTH

ASKED Jack Blackburn, a great fighter in his day and now boxing instructor and trainer of Joe Louis, just how he figured the Brown Embalmer would have done against former heavyweight champions. His replies are mighty interesting. Here they are:

AGAINST JOHN L. SULLIVAN—"I never saw John L., but I understand he was a stand-still fighter who relied on one punch to win. I am sure that Joe's speed and punching power would have been too much for Sullivan."

AGAINST JIM CORBETT—"Corbett was foxy and Louis would have to tag him. They fought 25-round battles in Corbett's day, and I think Joe would have finally connected in the later rounds. If it went the limit then Joe would have lost the decision."

AGAINST FITZSIMMONS—"Louis would be too strong for Fitz—just as Jeffries was—and strength would have decided this one. Fitz wasn't fast, but crafty, and Louis couldn't have eased up for a second. But he could stop an opponent cold with either hand."

AGAINST JEFFRIES—"Jeff was big but slow. He was a powerful puncher, but Joe punches just as hard and he would have speed on his side. It would be a great fight until one or the other landed. In this bout Louis' speed would be his ace in the hole."

AGAINST TOMMY BURNS—"Burns was too small. He couldn't punch a lick. I think Louis could name the round in this fight."

AGAINST JOHNSON—"Jack was a great defensive boxer. I have boxed with both Johnson and Louis. Joe throws much more leather and hits much harder. Johnson might stand him off for a while with his great defensive skill but would witter finally under Louis' terrific punching."

AGAINST WILLARD—"This would be just another Dempsey-Willard affair. Barring size, Louis has everything needed to make him the winner."

AGAINST DEMPSEY—"This would be a FIGHT. How I'd love to see this one. Two men evenly matched in strength—plenty of it—speed and punching ability. If Joe got the least bit careless it would be all over. And the same would go for Dempsey if he slipped up for a second. Either could win by a kayo. Purely a matter of who landed first. If it went the limit I think that Joe Louis would get the nod on points."

AGAINST TUNNEY—"Gene would be tough to tag and might stand off Louis until the final bell. I don't think Tunney could flatten Joe as he did Dempsey. With the bout going the limit Joe's harder punching and boxing ability would give him a slight edge."

AGAINST SCHMELING—"Joe has no alibi to offer for their fight last summer—and I will let their next bout give the answer."

AGAINST SHARKEY, CARNERA, BAER AND BRADDOCK—"The records speak for themselves."

When Lefty Gomez steps out of the dugout to go to the box he always puts one foot in the tray that holds the bats. Does it even if he has to push a bat or two out of the way to make room for his dogs. Also it is his proud boast that he never has so dared fate as to step on the third base foul line.

Ty Cobb is just beginning to show interest in reading about baseball . . . During his playing days he said he was too busy . . . Myril Hoag, Yankee outfielder, has the smallest feet in the major leagues . . . He wears a size four shoe on one and a four and a half on the other . . . The Detroit Tigers are the only team in the big leagues run entirely by catchers, Mickey Cochrane, Del Baker and Cy Perkins.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

FIVE fillies and six colts have won the Hambletonian, the rich trotting stake decided at Goshen, N. Y., every year. Only one filly, Regret, has won the Kentucky Derby, the running race to which the Hambletonian most closely compares in the matter of general interest . . . Tommy Bilodeau, catcher and captain of the 1937 Harvard baseball team, may sign a Red Sox contract any day now . . . The St. Louis Cards have signed Max Surkout, fifteen-year-old Pawtucket, R. I., pitcher. The cradle snatchers will send him to Rochester . . . For some reason or other the St. Nicholas Palace, probably the best known of smaller fight arenas, has changed its name to the Royal Windsor.

Mike Jacobs, the man who drove Madison Square Garden's 600 millionaires out of the boxing business, is proud of the fact insurance companies rate him as a half-million-dollar risk . . . It continues difficult for the average citizen to understand the brainwork of racing officials.

It pays to referee prize fights. Chicagoans report that the cocktail bar of Tommy Thomas, the former featherweight, has improved 50 per cent since he handled the Louis - Braddock championship changing . . . Jack Dempsey is predicting that the son of the late Billy Miske may some day disprove that myth which says sons never follow in the footsteps of first-class fighting fathers.

Terry Denies Rumors He'll Head Farm System

Bill Terry still denies those rumors that he is to become general manager of the Giants' farm system next year. When pressed he ends the conversation by remarking that his contract as manager runs through 1938 . . . Those rumors that Pie Traynor is through at Pittsburgh are becoming stronger . . . Glenn Wright still is hitting home runs with the bases full while managing the Wenatchee club in the Western International league. Also does some relief pitching when regular hurlers falter . . . In spite of frantic hot weather pleas of the players nearly all American league managers ban swimming in the pool in that swank Washington hotel at which they stay. The theory, also held by various football coaches, is that swimming tires and softens athletes engaged in other sports.

Bill Terry

New York Racing commissioners get sore when dog track operators charge they are being discriminated against. The officials say dog tracks can operate with as much freedom as the race courses if they employ the same bookmaking system of betting. The trouble is that it does not work out very well at the dog tracks, which need the certificate or pari-mutuel form of wagering to rake in heavy dough from small customers . . . George Lamaze has added a new gag at his fancy Arrowhead Inn by refusing to have menus printed.

Elephants with trunks turned up are the good luck charms of athletes as well as of celebrated financiers and eminent publishers. Auto race drivers still tell of Hughie Hughes, who had dozens of ivory elephants and almost always wore one of them suspended from his neck by a chain.

One day at Uniontown he was standing beside the track listening to friends congratulating him on winning a race where he had driven superbly and escaped death by inches at least a dozen times.

"Funny part about it," laughed Hughes, turning his back to the track for a moment. "I guess I've been overplaying this luck thing all along. Fact is, I forgot my elephant this morning and haven't had it on all day."

A car with a driver anxious to finish with some portion of the prize money, came speeding down the track. It hit Hughes and tossed him a hundred feet through the air before he landed—dead.

Seeks Bride on 121st Birthday

Cutting a birthday cake decorated with 121 candles, Abraham Wishkovsky is pictured, as he began his one hundred twenty-second year of life, at the home of the Daughters of Jacob in the Bronx, New York. In a birthday interview, Patriarch Wishkovsky, who is Polish by birth, announced that he is ready to marry again—for the sixth time—stipulating, however, that his bride must be "young and pretty."

Here's a Brand New English Custom

A sign of the times in Old England is this photograph, made during Chatham Navy week, which gives you an idea of the extent to which Europe is suffering from war jitters. The oilskinned gents at left are members of a "decontamination squad," who are rehearsing the duty they hope they'll never have to do—mopping up after an "enemy" gas attack. To lend realism to the scene an entire English family stands in front of its home, everybody gas-masked, watching the squad go by.

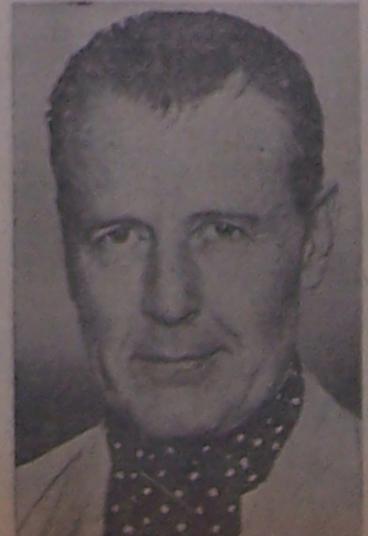

Zionist Opposes Palestine Split-Up

An outstanding opponent of the British plan to partition Palestine, Menachem M. Ussishkin (right), world president of the Jewish National fund, was elected chairman of the World Zionist congress at Geneva, Switzerland recently. Election of Ussishkin foreshadows an adverse vote on the partition plan, observers believe.

WAKE UP! HEY! THE PHONE'S RINGING!

HUH? I DON'T CARE—LET IT RING—NOT GONNA GET UP!

ALL RIGHT, I'LL ANSWER IT— BUT IF IT IS FOR YOU—!

IF IT IS, TEAR IT UP— I'M NOT INTERESTED— STAYING RIGHT HERE!

HELLO— WHAT?— MMM— OH— MMM— ETC— ETC—

WHAT WAS IT? WHO CALLED? WAS IT FOR ME?

NO!

Events in the Lives of Little Men

THIS "SWING MUSIC" THAT YOU HEAR NOWADAYS MAY BE ALL RIGHT— BUT WE'LL TAKE THOSE OLD BAND CONCERTS DOWN HOME ANY DAY—

THE DREAM =

HOW'D YOU LIKE HIM FOR A PET?

I'D RATHER HAVE A BIG DOG

HELP!

FOR YOU!

HELP!

A CASE OF TOO MUCH CIRCUS

MAYBE HE KNOWS

He—It's surprising what a big vocabulary is required.
She—Yes?
He—For small talk.

Thank You

"Conductor, help me off the train?"
"Sure."
"You see, I'm stout, and have to get off the train backwards. The porter thinks I'm getting on and gives me a shove on again. I'm five stations past my destination now."—Columbia Jester.

Not a Fan

"Bliggins doesn't take any interest in baseball."
"How do you know?"
"He says he never allows himself to become angry or excited."

Whee!

A man rushed out of a house, across the pavement, jumped high in the air and fell in the gutter heavily.
A passer-by rushed to his assistance, lifted him up and said: "You did a very funny thing just then."
"Yes," replied the other, "I thought I'd left my bicycle outside."—Montreal Star.

Why Bother?

Lady—What's your name, little boy?
Child—I don't know.
Lady—How does your mother call you when she has dinner ready?
Child—She doesn't call me. I'm there already.

THAT'S SERVICE

"Yes, Harry and Ann are married and I have the credit of bringing them together."
"And in about six months, you'll have the blame."

USING NO TIME

"You say Old Dollarmark is suing for your hand? What are you going to do?"
"I'm going to start a counter suit for breach of promise."

Caution

"You remember when you cured my rheumatism a year ago, don't you, doctor?" asked the patient, "and told me not to get myself wet?"
"Yes, Ephraim," replied the doctor.
"Well, I just wanted to ask you if you think it's safe for me to take a bath now?"—Windy City Breeze.

Same Old Method

Sitting in a concert hall waiting for the concert to begin, a man, seeing a little boy in front of him looking at his watch, bent forward and asked: "Does it tell the time?"
"No," answered the little boy. "You look at it."—Pearson's London Weekly.

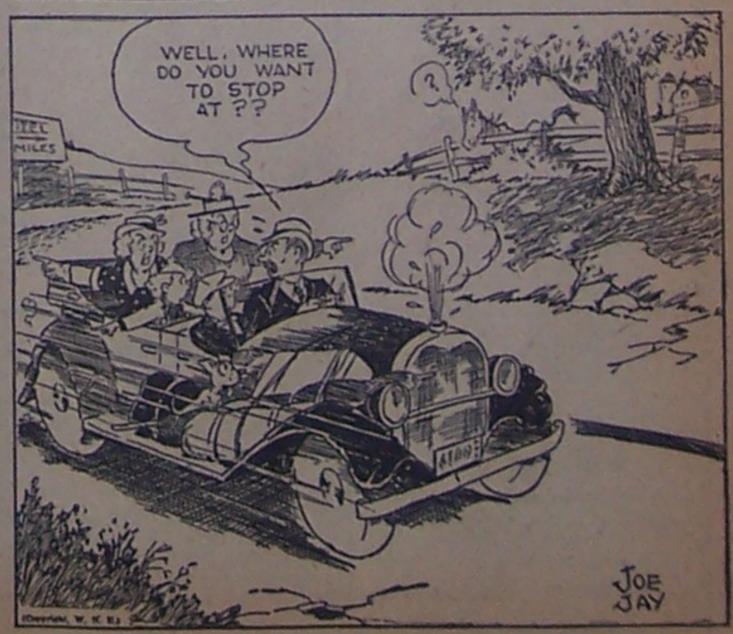

Worrying Less

"What became of that No Worry Club you used to belong to?"
"It took up a more practical form of development," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "and resolved itself into a credit men's association."

Ouch!

Teacher—What have you been doing to this little boy, Jones?
Jones—It wasn't my fault, sir. He gave my fist an awful wallop with his nose.—London Tid Bits Magazine.

BLOOD CLINICS COMBAT INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN ILL.

"Blood" clinics to obtain serum for combating the current epidemic of infantile paralysis in Illinois are soon to be held at Rockford, Bloomington and East St. Louis. Such clinics have recently been held at Moline, Peoria, Decatur and Springfield.

Blood given by former victims of infantile paralysis, or poliomyelitis, is used by state laboratories in Chicago and Springfield in the preparation of a serum which in most cases aids recovery if administered promptly after a diagnosis of infantile paralysis.

The clinics are being financed by reserve funds of the state health department upon authorization of Governor Horner.
