MAY HAVE FULL RECREATION PROJECT HERE

Information reached town this week that the approval of Robert Davis, head of the Federal Recreation Project of the WPA for district 2, Cook county, had been placed upon the proposal that Lansing be given a full recreation project.

This project which is being carried on very successfully in many other communities including our neighbors, Calumet City and Burnham, would bring to the children and adults as well a center of recreation with activities including baseball, kittenball, basketball, volleyball, football, badminton, indoor baseball, gymnastics, tennis, horse shoe, field and track, ice skating, checkers, chess, puzzles, games and also educational tours.

All that is required of the village is the use of a building, heat and lights. Full equipment for the various sports, will be supplied by the WPA including coaches, etc. The project will maintain the building it uses.

It is obvious that the Calvin Coolidge gym would be the logical place to house the project, and it is understood that the authorities promoting the project have already approached the school board relative to obtaining the use of this room.

Public attitude toward this branch of the WPA has undergone a vast change during the past year or so since its value to the community has been demonstrated, and there appears to be a general eagerness for the board to grant the use of the gym for this purpose.

In fact it has been rumored that a parochial school will welcome it and provide it housing should the public school fail to do so.

The village has already benefited by one of the educational tours sponsored by the project through the Calumet Memorial Park, when more than 130 children from the local public and parochial schools were taken to see a big college football game recently. Another tour is now being prepared that will afford many young people a chance to see the International Live Stock show in Chicago next week. The value of experiences such as these to the school children is readily seen, and since Lansing may have its own project it seems that the way can be opened by those in control of the usable buildings.

LECTURE POSTPONED

The lecture that was to have been delivered in the Trinity Lutheran church of Oak Glen Sunday evening, November 28, by Rev. Martin C. Elz has been postponed until Sunday, December 12, it was announced this week.

CHANGE AGENTS AT PENNSY DEPOT

A change of personnel took place at the Lansing station of the Pennsylvania railroad this week when William Pidgeon who has been the agent here for several years, was transferred and Mr. J. C. Snyder of East Chicago came here to take his place.

With the change of agents came a slight change in office hours at the depot. The station office will now be open each day from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m. with the exception of Sundays and holidays.

It has not definitely been decided whether Mr. Pidgeon will be sent to Dolton or Hartsdale.

EMMA BECKER, W. ECKSTEIN WED

A very pretty wedding took place at St. John's Ev. Lutheran church Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when Miss Emma Becker and Woodrow Eckstein were united in marriage by the Rev. H. H. A. Harthum. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Becker, Jr., and the groom the son of John Eckstein, former police magistrate of the village.

For her wedding Miss Becker chose a gown of white satin with a tulle veil held in place by a halo of braided white satin. Her bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Bertha Schmal as maid of honor wore pink taffeta moire and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids, Mary Klein and Julia Kowaleski, were both attired in blue taffeta moire.

Arnold Wolff acted as best man with William Becker and Alex Schmal as ushers.

The ceremony was followed by a dinner for about 200 guests in the St. John school hall. Out of town guests at the ceremony and dinner included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Clemens, Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis, Miss Mollie Mohr of Saginaw, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. George Gebhardt, Ernest Draheim, Miss Mary Arndt.

After the dinner a reception was held in the village hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Eckstein are residing with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Becker, Sr., of Randolph street.

Mr. Eckstein is employed by the Standard Oil Company of Whiting, Ind.

ACCIDENT WAVE HITS VILLAGE

ICY STREETS BLAMED

Icy streets that came with the season's first cold spell, ushered in a series of accidents in the village in which two were killed and several others injured.

The deaths resulted from the first accident which happened Thursday, Nov. 18, at 3:30 on Torrence avenue near 170th street, and since then there have been five other motor mishaps, all of serious nature.

Ike VanTil lost a portion of the front porch of his home when a Vivian Bakery truck skidded 81 feet into the end of the porch on Friday morning about 7 o'clock. Two cars were badly damaged Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in a collision at Torrence avenue and Thornton road.

Mrs. Mike Furlan suffered severe bruises about the head and legs when her husband's machine collided with that of Norman Bartholomew Sunday evening, and Peter Kikalos of Gary was taken to St. Margaret's hospital unconscious after his celery truck was hit by the village garbage truck at Ridge Road and Ada street Monday afternoon at 3:15.

The cars of Peter Schoon of Munster and Bert R. Lucas, 225 Ogden street, Hammond, were both badly damaged in a collision at Ridge Road and Wentworth avenue Monday afternoon at 4:30.

Two Fatally Injured

Mrs. Julia Sobey and Mrs. Joe Moore, both of Chicago, died from injuries received in the Thursday afternoon accident at Torrence avenue and 170th street, and the driver of the car, Lester Sobey, son of one of the victims, was also severely cut about the face and head. The fourth passenger in the car, Joe Moore, 70, escaped with only minor hurts.

The accident happened at 3:30, Nov. 18, the Sobey car skidding into the car driven by John DeJong of 167th street. A coroner's verdict, rendered Tuesday exonerated Mr. DeJong of any responsibility for the accident, attributing the deaths of the women to accident due to slippery pavement.

Skid Wrecks Porch

At 7 a. m. Friday morning, Nov. 19, a Vivian Bakery truck driven by John Chodl, 4727 Cedar street, Hammond, skidded 81 feet along Ridge Road, striking a tree only to glance off and collide full force into the front porch of the Ike VanTil home at Ridge Road and Maple street.

In this instance the driver and truck were both held by police. The driver was fined $10 and costs in Judge Sherrow's court and the truck was held until the damage to the VanTil porch had been settled for. This severity was meted out because this was not the first time a truck of this company had been involved in accidents in the village resulting in damage to other people's property.

Last year, due to carelessness on the part of the driver, a Vivian truck caused considerable damage to the H. Bertram car.

Two Collisions Sunday

Sunday brought two accidents, but fortunately no one was seriously hurt in either. The first at 10 a. m. happened at Torrence avenue and Thornton Road. John Formusa, Gary, driving a Packard car, ran into the truck of George Katz of Thornton Road just as Katz was making a left turn from Torrence onto Thornton Road. No one was injured and as Formusa settled all damages at once, no one was held by the police.

At 6 p. m. the same day, Nov. 21, Norman Bartholomew of Chicago ran into Mike Furlan of Oak Glen at the corner of Indiana avenue and Torrence avenue. Bartholomew (Continued on Page 12)

WM. VAN WEELDEN HURT IN FALL FRI.

William Van Weelden will be confined to his bed for the next four weeks it was learned Monday after x-ray pictures disclosed that he had suffered two fractures of the pelvic bone when he fell from a step ladder Friday morning.

Mr. Van Weelden was doing some repair work on the garage door for Mrs. Skaff when the bar he was using slipped, causing him to fall from the ladder. The x-ray was taken Monday and it was found that the pelvic bone was broken in two places.

P. T. A. CARNIVAL READY FOR DEC. 3

All plans are complete and everything will be in readiness for the annual Parent Teachers Carnival to be held in the Calvin Coolidge school on Friday evening, Dec. 3, it was announced this week.

The committee in charge of the affair is headed by Mrs. Leo Barth and includes Miss Miller, Miss Rylands, Miss Betell, Mr. Laybold, Mrs. Rahn, Mrs. Robert Janish and Mrs. Vander Aa. Mrs. Johanna Peters is to have charge of the refreshments which will be served from a long booth in the center of the gymnasium.

Village merchants are co-operating by decorating booths around the walls of the gym and a really fine list of attractions for the other rooms is being prepared.

The Minstrel show, which is a feature sponsored each year by the seventh and eighth grades of the Indiana avenue school, will be rivaled by a parent play which is an innovation this year. The Campfire girls are also giving a play and there will be side shows by the children of the first to sixth grades of both schools. The traditional fish pond will also be in evidence.

Almost everyone in the village comes out on the night of the carnival and everyone has a good time and the returns to the P. T. A. are usually gratifying.

The funds derived from the carnival are used by the organization for extra curricular materials for the schools, such as books, art and athletic supplies, picture projection machine, etc.

START ANNUAL SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS

With the delivery of 400,000 letters containing the 1937 tuberculosis Christmas Seals to the postal authorities yesterday, the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute has completed preparations for its thirty-fifth annual sale which will begin Thanksgiving Day and extend to the first of the year.

Under the double-barred cross, emblem of the tuberculosis crusade, Christmas Seals will be sold in Chicago and Cook county to finance the Institute's year round anti-tuberculosis program.

The funds from the 1937 sale will finance the Institute's program of public health education, Mrs. Sachs, executive director of the Institute, stated. Included in this service are: tuberculin skin-testing, X-rays, child health education, Negro and industrial health programs, distribution of literature, lectures, motion picture showings and an intensive general public health program. The seals also help to maintain the Institute's 17 health centers, 22 public health nurses, medical director and clinician. With the assistance of other public and private health agencies, the Institute's programs are brought within reach of every man, woman and child in Chicago and Cook county.

"No one can take away our joy, for we measure joy to ourselves." —Elizabeth Kates.

PROJECT PLANS SECOND TRIP FOR LOCAL CHILDREN

All Lansing school children are to be given a chance to see the great International Live Stock show in Chicago according to word received here from the Federal Recreation Project operating thru the Calumet Memorial Park system.

Mr. G. Wright who is active in this project is supervising the trip and those children wishing to go may sign for the trip with their teacher at school. The trip is planned for Friday, December 3, and there will be adults to look out for the children.

Safeway buses are to be used, the same as for the Chicago-Beloit football game that so many youngsters from here enjoyed a few weeks ago. A twenty-five cent transportation charge will be made for each child, and the money is to be left with the teachers. Children of both the public and parochial schools are included in the party.

The time and meeting place will be announced next week through the schools.

CHILDREN TO SEND CHRISTMAS GIFTS

A large box of Christmas toys has just been packed by the children of the primary and junior department of the First Reformed Church Sunday School to send to the children of the Indian mission in Dulce, N. M.

Young folks of the church, who are by some affliction hindered from enjoying regular Sunday school attendance and the other activities of the church are also remembered with little gifts from these departments.

All through the year the children bring birthday pennies and in this way carry on this work of helping others. In this way they are taught the great joy of giving as well as receiving. How the little folks love it.

All of the children are taking part in the Christmas program that is now being prepared, and will be given Christmas afternoon at 2 o'clock. The public is welcome at this entertainment.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES AT CROWN POINT

Mrs. George Steinbach of Crown Point passed away at her home Sunday, November 21. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon. The Steinbachs were former Lansing residents. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wright, from here, attended the funeral.

Falcons To Present Comedy Dec. 2-3

"Backing Into Eden" is the title of the three act comedy that is to be presented by the Nichols Falcons in the Munster town hall on the evenings of December 2 and 3. The play is to start at 7:30.

Included in the cast are Herman De Vries, Arthur Moes, John Terpstra, Angelyn Vander Werf, Annetta Bassow, John De Jong, William Terpstra, James Terpstra, Marion Becker, Peter Groot and Pearl Van Willigan.

The presentation of a play is an annual event with the Falcons and because of the excellent performances of the past, their new endeavors are always looked forward to with considerable expectancy by the community.

Gijon's Conquerors Stage Victory Dance

Dancing and singing through the battered streets of Gijon, the Nationalist rebel troops of General Franco are hailed by women of the city as they celebrate their victorious march through the Asturias to capture this important Loyalist stronghold.

De-Icer Promotes Air Safety

A mechanic shows a section of the new type of de-icers installed on T. W. A. planes to prevent possible forced landings and fatal crack-ups due to ice forming on the wings of the transports. Three tubes through which the air is forced every 47 seconds causing the specially treated and re-enforced covering to raise a distance of an inch and a half from the wing may clearly be seen.

Brother and Sister Wed by Error

Ben Ipock and Mary Ipock of Chilhowee, Mo., brother and sister who, before they learned they were related, fell in love and married. A month later they discovered their relationship and the marriage was annulled. Both are orphans and had never seen each other until Ben went to work on the farm of Mary's foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Williams.

Hymn Without Words "Sung" by Deaf Mutes

One of the strangest church services held anywhere in the world takes place every Sunday in the Cameron M. E. church in Cincinnati, Ohio. It is a service for deaf mutes conducted entirely in sign language. Here is a view of the choir of six as they "sing" "Nearer My God to Thee." Not a word is spoken throughout the service, the sermon being delivered in sign language by Rev. August H. Staubitz.

TOMATO BARRAGE

Gladys Swarthout, opera star and actress, wipes tomatoes from her features following a barrage of fruit tossed at her during a scene from her newest picture. She was playing the role of an unappreciated amateur. Note tomatoes on Miss Swarthout's $2,500 dress which she wore for the scene.

Haven for Uncalled-For Bikes

Hundreds of bicycles that have been picked up by the Detroit police after being lost or stolen find their way among the articles being auctioned off semi-annually. Police wonder why these bikes are never called for by their owners. Chester Klukowski, eleven, is shown undecided as to which one he will choose to bid on at the auction at the police warehouse.

Getting Ready for Fox Hunt

A group of hunters painting numbers on their dogs before the chase in which members of the Virginia Fox Hunters association participated recently near Petersburg. Note the pained expression on "33X" in the center. After the chase the hunters were served with "Brunswick stew" cooked in a huge iron kettle out-of-doors.

316 YEARS LATER

In 1621 a small band of courageous souls completed their first harvest in a strange wild country. With the wide expanse of ocean to the east of them and the primeval forest westward, cut off from others of their own race or color by vast distances that could only be covered by days and weeks of travel, these few people gathered together of their means and gave a feast of Thanksgiving.

They worshiped God as the divine origin of all their good gifts and paused to give Him thanks.

In 1863 Abraham Lincoln, then president of a vast new country, the United States of America, remembering that first thanks giving, and the many scattered days of thanksgiving that had been observed as the nation grew, saw the multitudinous blessings that had been found by the descendants of those pilgrims and named the last Thursday of November as a national day of Thanksgiving, and so it has been observed since that time.

Such is the origin of the American Thanksgiving day and may it continue on through the years as the most important holiday of the year, for as long as a nation can take the time to give thanks for the blessing received, just so long will that nation continue to prosper and be blessed. Gratitude for what we have is the very best symbol of fitness for further good things.

A grateful heart or nation is a heart or nation fully aware of its blessings and opportunities, and being aware of such things bespeaks their use and improvement. Opportunities improved bring more abundance, thus is fulfilled the scriptural prophecy, to those who have more shall be given.

We have come a long way since that first Thanksgiving in 1621, today the spoken word will flash across the continent, whose size and wealth the pilgrim fathers never dreamed of, in a few seconds, friend may greet friend though miles apart, only a few hours separate the two coasts, and thousands derive a living from industries that were not known fifty years ago.

Research today, given an objective may easily produce along its way to the fixed goal, by products that will give material sustenance to thousands. A young man or woman with an idea and the will to see it through faces a marvelous frontier of opportunity, a great universe of progress.

Let us give thanks unto the Divine Power that guides a grateful people, and remember the God who builded us a nation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Those who follow national politics always watch local elections with close attention. The policy that is approved by voters of a village may in the fullness of time be the policy that is adopted in the seats of the mighty at Washington. Disapprovals shown by voters will be reflected by their representatives in Congress. It is in town, city and state elections that the temper of the people is best reflected.

The recent off-year elections were more than ordinarily significant. What they showed is well summed up by Dorothy Thompson: "They furnish no sign that the American people want to turn the direction of their political affairs over to militant labor."

"There is no indication that they wish an increase in government ownership. They show that there is a positive popular desire to curtail government extravagances."

"They also show that the voters are not much moved by hysterical screams of red and bolshevik."

The trend of business has not changed in the last week or so. It is still downward, and seem to be levelling off at a substantially lower stage than prevailed this summer. Stocks have been irregular, holding to levels a little above the October lows.

Principal unfavorable sign is smaller automobile production. Principal favorable sign, says the Annalist, "is an unexpectedly high level of engineering contracts."

Business briefs of interest follow:
STEEL: With sales dropping, production is at extremely low levels, by comparison with last spring. Purchases by the automobile industry will largely determine the future of steel production. These purchases have been relatively small so far.
PRICES: Commodity prices have been weakening. The rise in the general cost of living has halted, and the course is now downward. Retail prices have not as yet entirely reflected the changes in wholesale prices.

FOREIGN TRADE: Recently hit a new high for the year.

EMPLOYMENT: Is naturally swinging downward. The relief problem will be grave this winter. If, as is anticipated, federal relief is reduced, the burden will fall on states and municipalities, few of which are prepared to take up the load.

EXTRA! EXTRA!

(By O. Wulfling)

Hidden Moral
 Strange and divers are the ways of fate. Here was the village of Lansing and its police department congratulating itself only a week or so ago, upon the peace and quiet it was enjoying. Folks going along behaving themselves, and nary an accident for months, when whoops! of a sudden old man winter starts huffing and puffing, blows up a minor snow storm, covers the streets with ice, hurries everybody out for anti-freeze, and the accident morale takes slump. Six pretty serious collisions in less than that many days.

Somewhat like human beings. We all seem to run along like a newly regulated clock, in perfect time for a spell and then somebody loses his temper, says something catty, somebody gets his feelings hurt and there is a tempest in a teapot that takes time and retrospect to soothe. The moral of which seems to be a little obscure.

Soliloquy of a Lonely Lover
 When moons were red and breezes softly sighing,
 It hurt to think of evenings such as these,
 Whose frosted breath would sternly be denying
 Our trysts beneath the sighing orchard-trees.

Now you are far away, and still I trace you
 Upon my heart, in golden imagery,
 Nor suffer pangs that I may not embrace you—
 It gives me time to fashion verse,
 Cheri.

—Fan C. Smith.

In Naming Worth
 To place value upon a thing,
 In coin of realm, some would be little.
 Seeking in song, or rhyming verse,
 To find a quality above man's mettle;
 Knowing full well that estate best,
 Which holds to soul a kindly thought,
 And that warm sun, a baby's smile,
 Or love's first kiss cannot be bought
 For Midas gold. And yet through all
 There runs a touch of earth.

The spirit may sing, while the hands must work—
 And there is no shame in naming worth.

—O. Wulfling.

Songs My Mother Sang
 The songs my mother sang were old,
 And mostly they were hymns;
 And yet the story that they told,
 Has power time never dims.

She sang while working, often then,
 Her voice rose clear and free . . .
 Though silenced now, I hear again
 Those strains come back to me.

—Margaret E. Bruner.

Remember Way Back When
 The butcher used to throw in bones and pieces for the dog, and a chunk of liver for the cat?
 When the garage men began to think they had "arrived" because they were competing with the blacksmiths?

When the fellows making cars up in Detroit figured, about thirty years ago, that they would sell their cars to all the people that could afford to buy them in "another year or two," and what to do then?

When "Alkali Ike" thrilled us in two reel westerns at the old Bijou nickelodian?

When the girls put up their hair with their first long dress?

Wondering
 How many butchers, through how many years have been asked by how many people, "Have you any brains?" and how many grins the question has given rise to. And incidentally how many of the butchers have replied with as much nonchalance and assurance, that ne has, as did Harry Hoekstra the other day?

How long it will take capital and labor to discover that each lives by the equalized efforts of both, and that for one to cut the other's throat is to cut off its own nose?

And if the young fellows who tried the automobile juggling the other day weren't a little chagrined when the big cop says, "Shame, shame"? Seems that a couple of the younger generation out with their automobiles decided they didn't like the third fellow so well and might as well have some fun. One came in front and to the rear of the victim, all in cars. The one in front pushed back and the one behind pushed forward. The poor chap in the middle was trying to find out what it was about when the cop found them. Sts! Sts! Maybe it was a new style of hockey.

Some drivers of automobiles feel that they must drive a car that has more horsepower than other cars. They feel that they must sit behind the wheel and drive an automobile as though it had 100 wild horses out in front of it running at random.

Under the hood of every automobile are anywhere from 4 to 100 horses—docile and tame in the hands of some drivers, but wild and dangerous to life, limb and property in the hands of others.

"Ride 'em cowboy" may be a good cheer at a rodeo but "step on it" is poor advice to the person who takes a car out on a public highway that other people must use.

"Pay it back! Don't be foolish. There is no question of paying it back. Have you forgotten that Mary Amanda Dane left an income to you?"

Brooke came from behind the chair to perch nonchalantly on the arm. For an instant she watched the flame-color pattern the firelight cast on her white satin frock. She was quite steady now, she assured herself, quite self-possessed. She managed a smile as she looked up.

"You don't think for an instant, do you, that I would accept a cent of that money? Would you take any from me when I tried to divide with you? I'm surprised, I'm really surprised that you don't play the martyr and ask me to marry you."

"No. I shan't ask you to marry me. I've made a lot of mistakes in my life, but, believe me, I've learned enough not to make that one."

His cool denial hurt Brooke intolerably. He hated her, she told herself. Why shouldn't he?

"In the library a while ago you told Lucette you were leaving here because you had accepted an offer. Are you engaged to Jerry Field?"

A gate in the wall! A way out without letting him know that she cared, how desperately she cared for him. She laughed.

"I—Here come Sam and Lucette. They are stamping snow from their feet outside as a warning that they are about to interrupt our conference. Amusing, isn't it?"

"Amusing to you, perhaps. It isn't to me."

Sam's face was as red as the fire as he and Lucette entered the room.

"Sorry to interrupt, but—"

"Don't apologize."

"I'm not apologizing." His face went from red to crimson. "I'm only trying to explain, Brooke, that the inspector's walking the floor and gnashing his teeth and muttering something about keeping the Law waiting. He wants you, Mark, and he wants you quick."

"I'm going." Mark Trent paused on the threshold. "Good-night, Brooke. We'll finish our talk tomorrow."

CHAPTER XVI

"We'll finish our talk tomorrow."

A month had passed since Mark Trent had flung those words at her, since she had left Lookout House. They had echoed to the accompaniment of the whirl of the wings of the great plane in which she had flown south at the urgency and the expense of Carston's Inc.; they had intruded in business hours; they had flitted like wraiths through her dreams. She had not seen him, he hadn't even written, Brooke told herself bitterly. Hadn't she said that he had made a lot of mistakes, but that he had learned enough not to make the mistake of asking her to marry him? After that, why couldn't she forget? Why did his voice everlastingly echo through her memory?

The days slid past breathlessly. She was conscious of a sort of breathless urge to keep up with something which was escaping her.

Keep up with what, she asked herself, as in the flower-scented dressing room of Carston's, Inc. she slipped out of the green organza number she had been modeling and into a frock of cool yellow linen. She was looking out unseeingly at the palm-bordered white street when Madame Celeste entered. Her thin white frock rested Brooke's eyes after the rainbow collection she had put on and off for the last two hours.

"You done noble, cherie," the woman approved heartily.

There was something in her nasal twang as refreshing as a breeze from a thousand New England hills.

"That last customer is one of the richest girls in the country. She ordered all the gowns you modeled. You look kind of tired, you've a right to, cherie, after landing that whale of an order. Get some lunch here, go home and rest until four, then come back. You will dress here, the society models will dress at the Shaw's sports house. Sidone will be there to help them. You'll be the only professional mannequin, but I wouldn't trust an amateur to show that wedding gown. The charity fete begins at five. The wedding party will be the last feature of the style show. Look your best. We expect that some prospective bride will snap up the whole outfit when she sees you walk up the ribbon and flower-bordered aisle in that heavenly white satin veiled in a mist of tulle. You'll make a ravishing bride, cherie; it will be your last appearance, so knock their eyes out."

The words "last appearance" penetrated the turmoil in Brooke's mind.

"Last appearance! What do you mean?"

Madame Celeste twisted her amethyst beads. "Cherie, don't go white on me. You know business hasn't been too good, and I have my orders. After the fashion show I'm to hand you a check for your commissions and a month's pay and you're through."

"But—but I thought I had sold a lot of frocks since I came."

"You have, and you can search me for the boss's reasons. Never knew him to turn a trick like this before—but, I ask you, is any business being run as it ever was run before? I'll tell the world it isn't. I'm terribly sorry to lose you."

For an instant, emotion threatened damage to the enameled calm of the woman's face.

Brooke was still puzzling over the dismissal when she reached the small Bermuda-type house, with its whitewashed roof and walls built around two sides of a patio, in which she had been living since she had come to Palm Beach, and entered her room.

She changed from the yellow cotton frock to white shantung pajamas. She picked up letters from a desk, pushed open a window, stepped out on the gallery and breathed deeply of the light thin air.

She opened a letter from Lucette. For the first two pages the word "Jerry" monopolized space; to even a feeble-minded person it would be evident that Jerry Field was leading in a long stag line.

Brooke was glad of that, but how did Lucette manage to take on all the festivities and be fit for her work in the morning? As if she had anticipated the question, Lucette wrote, with words heavily underlined for emphasis:

"After this evening I'll cut out the night spots. There's nothing in them for me. It's an ill wind that blows nobody good. If you hadn't lost the Dane money you would still be hovering over me like a hen with one chicken. You and Mother were so afraid to let me be on my own; I know what you've been thinking from your letters. Trouble with you two is, you don't trust me enough. Did you think I would like having men make passes at me? That I would want to look and act like a silly fool from too many cocktails? That I would drive around the country after midnight with a man who was so tight that I'd find myself at dawn messed up round a telegraph pole? I've tried them all—except the pole; that night I told my muddled escort that I had never driven a car like his, would he let me try it? I asked sweetly. He would. Of course I drove with the dumb-bell's head parked on my shoulder, but, in the words of our old friend Henry W. L.,

"Into each life some rain must fall. Some days must be dark and dreary."

"You know that I've always loathed cheapness, and if the pastimes above listed aren't cheap—cheap—cheap, I don't know what is."

"So stop worrying about little sister, darling, and get this: I want to be like you, Brooke. You don't smoke, you don't drink, and yet I've never seen a man who, when introduced to you, didn't stand a little straighter, fuss with his tie, and get that I've-found-her-at-last look in his eyes; and you're grand fun and the life of the party."

"There, you have the inside story of my life, so what? Never thought I would let you know how I adored you—bad for you—but here it is.

"Lucette."

"P. S. News flash! Sam's play may be produced any day. Its predecessor is folding up; it was a terrible flop."

Brooke shut her eyes to keep back tears. She had known that Lucette loved her, but that she set her on a pedestal was unbelievable. As to that "I've-found-her-at-last" look in a man's eyes, she should have seen Mark Trent's when he had called her a "schemer" in Jed Stewart's office.

Why think of it? Hadn't she plenty of happier things to think of? She glanced at the clock. Sam's play might be produced any day. She had lost her job. She was free to go to New York! Could she afford it? Why did that grubby question have to pop up to take the joy out of life? Of course she would go. She had flown to Palm Beach at the expense of Carston's Inc. She would take a bus in return on her own. She would go tonight, go on to a new adventure in living.

Tingling with excitement, she telephoned for a reservation on the night bus; packed a small trunk to be sent by express; folded her silver evening frock and accessories into the air luggage suitcase which Carston's Inc. had provided. She would want the gala clothes for the premiere—thrilling thought. She laid out an amethyst tweed suit with crimson scarf and beret, to wear on the journey. It would be cold when she reached New York.

All ready and somewhere to go! She glanced at the clock. There was time for a swim before she started for the style-show. It would set her up and refresh her.

She slipped into the white water-frock and caught up a beach coat. Life was gloriously worth while even if the man one loved did think one a "schemer," she told herself, as she ran down the steps which led to the patio.

She was humming a snatch of gay song as she crossed the strip of yellow sand stepping in golden sunlight which the march of fashion had left behind. Arms extended, she slid into the sparkling water. It parted. Buoyant, foamy, it closed over her. Marvelous feeling. This would stabilize her mind, drown haunting memories. She swam with quick strokes, turned, floated, came back arm over arm, and, dripping with coolness, waded out to the shore.

A man rose from the shadow of the dark hibiscus hedge outside the patio. Its scarlet flowers seemed to nod at her in amused derision as she stopped in surprise. Mark

Trent! This was the cue for cool sophistication.

He held out the beach coat she had dropped on the sand.

"Put this on, Brooke. Let's sit here. I want to talk to you and we may be interrupted inside."

"How did you know where I was?"

"I've been playing round with Lucette, more or less. Saw Sam when I came through New York."

"Sam! How was he?"

"Nerves taut as violin strings, otherwise in great shape."

"When does his play open?"

"Day after tomorrow."

"So soon!"

"Why that sudden look of horror?"

"It wasn't horror, it was—I've lost my job and I had planned to leave here tonight by bus, but traveling that way I can't possibly make New York in time for the premiere of 'Islands Arise.'"

"I know that you've lost your job. I had a talk with your boss before I left the city. He agreed with me that you shouldn't miss the opening of Sam's play."

"You mean that you told him to fire me? What right have you to interfere in my life?"

"The right of a sort of guardian; didn't Aunt Mary Amanda so request in that last will?" Eyes on a pelican fishing in shallow water, he accused:

"You haven't answered Jed's letters notifying you that the amount of income you had been receiving from my aunt's estate would be deposited monthly to your account as usual. I had to come to find out if you had received them."

Brooke sprang to her feet. Her beach coat slipped off. Slim and golden-skinned in her white water-frock, she dug pink toes into the hot sand.

"I didn't answer because you both know without being told that I won't touch that money."

Mark Trent loomed over her. "Put this on again," he commanded grimly. "Why won't you touch that money?"

Brooke thrust her arms into the beach coat he held and stuck her unsteady hands into the pockets.

"Would you take a cent of Mary Amanda Dane's when I thought it mine? Didn't you say in that snobby voice of yours the afternoon we met in Jed Stewart's office:

"'Hope you'll enjoy the house and fortune,' Miss Reyburn. Now it's my turn:

"'I hope you'll enjoy the house and fortune,' Mr. Trent. I'm sure Daphne Field will be crazy about it."

"Daphne!" He caught her wrist in a grip which hurt. "Where did you get that crazy idea?"

How crude, how unbelievably crude she had been to mention Daphne's name, Brooke accused herself hotly. But, having blundered, she'd better see it through with the light touch.

"From a letter from Mrs. Gregory the other day. It was full of news, all about Mark Trent and Daphne Field, the current lady of his heart. She's a grand gossip."

Mark Trent's eyes drew Brooke's like a magnet. Was the light in his laughter?

"Anne Gregory is more than a gossip; she's a strategist. I haven't spoken to Daphne Field since the night of the play and she knows it." He loosened his hold on her wrist. "What are you doing this afternoon?"

"I'm—I'm modeling—for the last time."

"Can't you get out of it?"

"No."

"That's decisive. I have a present for you, but this doesn't seem to be just the moment to produce it. You seem to dislike me more than ever. I thought we might play round together. If you can't, or won't, I'll join a bunch of friends who wanted to date me up for some sort of fete this afternoon. They were all excited about a plan to surprise somebody about something. I didn't listen; I was anxious to locate you. I'll see you tonight before I leave, Brooke."

"Are you leaving tonight?"

"Yes. By plane. Come with me?"

"Certainly not." She imitated his voice and inflection to a note as she stopped at the gate of the patio.

"Hope you'll enjoy the trip, Mr. Trent. Happy landings!"

The sky was like a huge sapphire; the sunshine was rose-tinted; the ocean a tumbling mass of emeralds. A fragrant breeze, a mere suggestion of a breeze, ruffled the bright orange flame-vine on top of the high Spanish wall which enclosed three sides of a garden open to the sea, a garden filled with tables set in gay borders which were filmy frocks; there were faces above the tables, faces under large hats and men's faces with no hats at all.

From a Moorish gallery drifted male voices singing to the accompaniment of guitars as Brooke stepped from the automobile which had brought her to the charity fete. Carstons Inc. had staged the wedding party of the style show with meticulous attention to detail, even to sleek shining cars to bring the bride and bridesmaids to the ornate grilles which were the garden gates. Reporters were there and camera men, hordes of them, all the frills and appurtenances of a wedding except groom and ushers.

Madame Celeste, chic in black and pearls, was flushed with excitement under her make-up; her French accent was noticeable for its absence as she whispered last instructions:

"Wait until the singers stop, girls.

The moment the orchestra strikes the first note of the wedding march, start. Don't get flustered. Don't get out of step. You're all lovely, your floppy hats are divine, and your bouquets of Transvaal daisies combining the shades of your frocks are perfect. Remember to smile when you turn in the space where the altar should be and isn't, to come down the three stairs to the aisle. Brooke, you are almost too white under that tulle; perhaps I should have put on more rouge. Too late now. Remember that you're giving an imitation of a radiantly happy bride, cherie. They've stopped. Ready! Listen!"

A violin sighed a soft note. Others joined until strings and harps and woodwinds swelled into the wedding march from Lohengrin.

Bridesmaids, their lips scarlet, their eyes shining between dark mascaraed lashes, passed between the iron grilles and moved slowly up the ribbon-outlined aisle, dragging their gold slippers a little in time to the rhythm of the music, and the swish of their taffeta slips. The first two were dressed in billowy rose-orange net; behind them at a short distance came two more in a lighter tint, then two in soft yellow, then a fourth pair in ivory, and then the bride in snowy satin so soft in texture that it trailed in ravishing folds. Slowly she came with head slightly bent, eyes presumably on the mass of white Transvaal daisies and stelia she carried, hair shining like burnished copper beneath the mist of her veil, but she could see, could feel the people who crowded the garden, people distinguished, powerful, chic: what the papers would headline as the cream of society.

Brooke felt the surge of motion as everyone stood up—a tribute to Madame Celeste's stagecraft—the wedding procession was so perfect that habit had brought the audience to its feet. She must keep her attention on the girls in front—why had Mark Trent come to Palm Beach—this heavenly music made one all trembly inside—would she never reach the spot where she was to turn—three stairs to mount before she reached it—this ought to be great fun, why was she taking it so seriously—a mass of faces—they seemed to be closing in—even out of doors the scent of exotic perfume and flowers was suffocating—almost there—step—drag—the vivid colors, the people seemed unreal—the orange-color bridesmaids were mounting the steps.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Suede Matches Smartly With Knit

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IMPORTANT news—knit and suede have formed a partnership! If it's fashion thrills you are seeking just make a visit to the nearest display of late fall and winter knitwear fashions and see how smartly knit and suede are carrying on in their new alliance.

If you are interested in knitted apparel, and of course you are, for every woman is sensing more and more that knitted clothes not only serve most faithfully, but when it comes to "style" it's all there and—well, as we were saying, if you are interested in knitted apparel just wait before buying until you see the magic worked in the new outfits via the added touch of suede either in an accessory way per gloves, belts, handbags, hats and shoes or by working the suede in as an integral part of the costume.

See the stunning two-piece to the left in the picture. It demonstrates perfectly how skilfully designers are using suede with knit. The knitted fabric for this model is appropriately called "huntress tweed." The modern Diana will certainly "dress to the part" in this striking two-piece. Describing the knitted material that fashions it, there are solid colored cotton nubs splattered throughout a vertical rib stitch. The jacket front is of soft suede in a contrasting color and a zipper closure. The silk scarf matches the tailored suede belt in color, and the little skull cap worn snugly at the back of the head is of the same knitted material as the skirt.

As to the costume centered in the group, all the way from Tibet comes the fine soft cashmere wool so emphatically in vogue in knitted sportswear this season. Being well styled, this cashmere knitted dress will prove chic and comfortable at outdoor sports at the same time that it underwrites a promise of being well-dressed at afternoon functions. There are suede accents with gold eyelets and a suede belt with a gold buckle. The skirt is four-gored and flares gracefully.

Cashmere does service to smartness, comfort and sports style in the two-piece knitted dress shown to the right. There is a shirred yoke effect in the front part of the blouse, mounted by a neckline drawn up and bowed with a grosgrain ribbon in peasant fashion. The belt is suede. The wide hip-band emphasizes the youthful silhouette and is surmounted by novelty pockets posed on the diagonal.

Which reminds us, the pocket theme is an important one. Watch the newest little jackets and see how decoratively and amusingly they are being pocketed this season. Furthermore advance news is to the effect that designers are going to continue to "say it" for the new spring fashions in terms of novel and numerous pockets.

If you are assembling a suede accessory ensemble, look up the smart new belts made of cutout leaves in multi colors riveted together with metal eyelets. They tone up the simplest knit dress to perfection.

Another way to carry out a successful partnership of suede with knit is to top the knitted dress with a knee-length somewhat flaring coat of bright suede. This type costume is proving a campus favorite. Also to wear about town there's nothing swankier.

As to sweaters and twin sets (some of the latter top the knit pull-on blouse with a cunning knit bolero instead of the usual sweater jacket) they yield to the new embellishment of suede most gaily.

In Making Vegetable Salads.—To prevent vegetable salads from becoming too watery, dry the vegetables before combining with the salad dressing.

Washing Voile.—Voile frocks will not shrink if you use a tablespoonful of epsom salts to every gallon of water when washing them.

Ten-Minute Sweet.—Line a buttered pie dish with breadcrumbs. Into a pint of milk whisk 2 eggs, 4 tablespoonfuls of sugar and a dash of vanilla essence. Pour over the crumbs and bake for 10 minutes.

To Wash Velour Curtains.—Did you know that curtains and table covers of heavy velvet-finished furnishing velour can be washed? The trick is never to wring them—just douse them in warm soapy water, then in clear water and hang out dripping wet to dry.

When Washing Blankets: Never leave any soap in blankets as this will turn them yellow. Allow half a cupful of vinegar to each gallon of final rinsing water; this will clear all soap from them.

Wipe Up Acid Foods.—Since some enamels lose their luster when they come in contact with acid, always be careful to wipe up, immediately, any vinegar, lemon juice, tomato, or other acid food that is spilled on the enamel of your range.

Improving Flavor of Bacon.—When boiling bacon or any kind of salted meat, the flavor will be improved if six cloves, a dessert-spoonful of lemon juice, a tablespoonful of brown sugar, a sprig of mint, and a grating of nutmeg are added to the water.

Savory Salmon Dish.—Turn out a small tin of salmon, remove skin and bones and flake the fish. Season with pepper and salt. Mix 2 cupfuls of breadcrumbs with 2 ounces of flour, stir in 2 well-beaten eggs and the salmon. Mix well, then form into the shape of a fresh salmon steak. Fry in a little hot fat until brown, turning carefully so that both sides are cooked. Serve garnished with sliced lemon or tomatoes.

For Dry Shoe Polish.—Shoe polish which has become hard and dry should be moistened with a little vinegar.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Thanksgiving" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Thursday, Nov. 25.

The Golden Text was, "The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped; therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise him." (Psalms 28:7).

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "Sing, O daughter of Zion; shout, O Israel; be glad and rejoice with all the heart, O daughter of Jerusalem. The Lord hath taken away thy judgments, he hath cast out thine enemy: the king of Israel, even the Lord, is in the midst of thee; thou shalt not see evil any more. The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with singing." (Zephaniah 3:14, 15, 17).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Love is impartial and universal in its adaption and bestowals. It is the open fount which cries, 'Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters.'" (p. 13).

Good Thoughts For Good People

There is a time in every man's education when he arrives at the conviction that though the wide universe is full of good, no kernel of nourishing corn can come to him but through his toil bestowed on that plot of ground which is given to him to till. —Emerson.

One person I have to make good myself. —R. L. Stevenson.

Public opinion is a weak tyrant compared with our own private opinion. What a man thinks of himself, that it is which determines, or rather indicates his fate. —Thoreau.

Every person has two educations: one which he receives from others, and one more important, which he gives to himself. —Gibson.

Conscious worth satisfies the hungry heart, and nothing else can. —Mary Baker Eddy.

BOWLING

By R. O. Hecht

With their minds partly on bowling and partly on "Turkey", the men folks in the bowling leagues of Lansing, enter into the eleventh week of the season. On Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, there will be no league bowling and the four teams scheduled to play that night will postpone their games until a later date. There will, however, be open bowling Thursday, both afternoon and evening. In the afternoon at 2:30, there will be a match between the Cherrle Pickers and the Walther League teams.

Last weeks results in the Major league were as follows: Knot-holes again tumbled some more and lost all three games to the State Line men. Miko took two away from Dockweller as did Ridge Road. Gardens take two from Kraay Brothers. The Legion did a real job of taking the first place Auto Inn down the line for two. The Lions went extra hot as they shot a 901 game and took two from the Federal men. Dave Jacobs shot high game in this league with a score of 215.

The Auto Inn boys hold first place by one game having won 19 and lost 11 while Dockwellers and State Line are tied for second place one game behind the leaders. State Line has the best team average in the league with 819 and Auto Inn has an average of 807.

Looking to the Minor League we see that this league is performing better, at present, than the Major League. One of the Minors, Whitley Hecht, shot high game for the season last Monday night when he hung up the score of 253. The Minors also have a team that has a better team average than the best in the Major league. Meeters team has an average of 821 pins and Lansing Pharmacy has an average of 814.

The results in the Minor league this week were as follows: Gids managed to take one game from Lansing Motors. Padjen met Meeters and was downed two times. Lansing Pharmacy took all three games from Louie and gained another game on the second place Meeter team. Hoppman Cleaners went hot and took two from the fast stepping Slager Brothers. The Minor League now stands thus: Lansing Pharmacy in first place with 25 wins and 8 defeats. Meeters 23 wins and 10 defeats. Next week Meeters and the Pharmacy boys meet.

LUISE RAINER AND SPENCER TRACY IN "BIG CITY" AT THE PARAMOUNT THEATRE IN HAMMOND

"Big City," an original story written and produced by Norman Krasna, brilliant young New York playwright now devoting his talents to the screen, opened this afternoon at the Paramount Theatre for a two day run, with Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy, co-starred. Here is no crude attempt to reveal the machinery of a metropolis as a whole. On the contrary, it is a cunning unique story of a single slice of life in a great city and the adventures of a taxi driver in a struggle to survive. The story is powerful and the acting is equal to it. An excellent supporting cast includes Charley Grapewin, Janet Beecher, Eddie Quilla and John Arledge. Some of the scenes were filmed in Jack Dempsey's famous restaurant opposite the Madison Square Garden in New York City with many notables of the sporting fraternity facing the cameras.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

IT IS a toss up whether Madeleine Carroll or Loretta Young will be the most-exquisitely dressed screen star this winter. Miss Carroll writes from Paris that she is having the time of her life selecting costumes for "The River Is Blue" which she will start making for Walter Wanger when she returns to Hollywood.

Loretta Young was in New York recently buying fur coats, hats, and dresses by the score, just as if she hadn't had any new clothes in ages. Hollywood designers have just about run out of ideas for Loretta for in her last four pictures she has had altogether some 80 changes of costume, and each one was supposed to be a knockout. The more extreme and bizarre clothes are, the better she likes them—so she keeps designers working overtime.

Madeleine Carroll

You will be hearing a lot from now on about Ilona Massey, who makes her American screen debut in M-G-M's "Rosalie." Officials of the company are so delighted with her performance in a minor role that they are going to give her the title role in "Pompador," one of the most alluring beauties in history or drama.

There is one popular radio player who will have to mend her ways if she ever goes into motion pictures—and most of them do sooner or later. Alice Frost of the "Big Sister" cast comes out of rehearsals with her forehead all smudged. She holds a pencil in her hand, and in a moment of dramatic tension invariably draws the point across her forehead.

Because of her good work in the new Fred Astaire picture, "Damsel in Distress," Joan Fontaine is going to get a strange reward. She is going to be starred in "Curtain Call," which Katherine Hepburn turned down. Don't think she minds taking this hand-me-down, though it is a grand story.

Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy will be in the cast of a new comedy that will feature Irene Dunne and as a result she is the envy of all Hollywood as well as the public at large. Her outstanding success as a comedienne in "The Awful Truth" influenced Universal to postpone their biography of Madame Curie and instead of that story to cast her in a comedy.

Charlie McCarthy

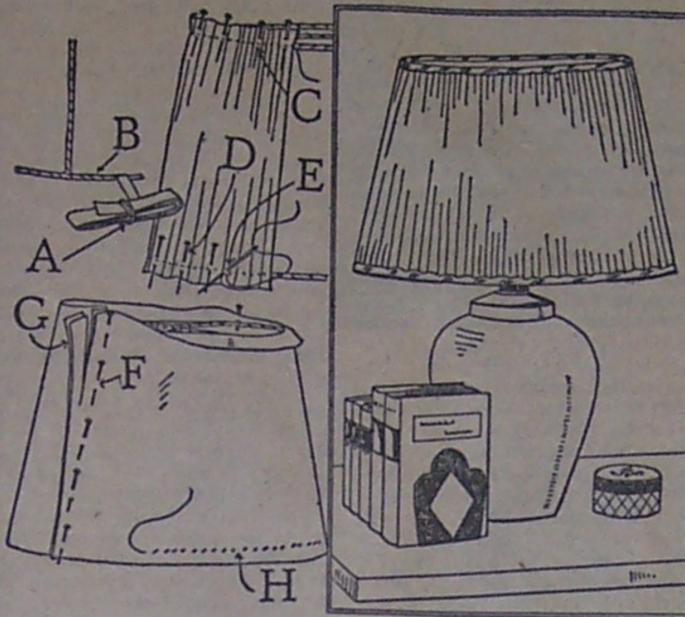

Thus she has established herself as a double threat actress, at home in heavy drama as well as light farce.

ODDS AND ENDS—Constance Bennett is the envy of all the pampered stars, because Alfalfa Sweitzer of "Our Gang" comedies serenades her in his hilariously-uncertain tenor. . . . Ken Murray and Edgar Bergen have evidently decided that they are in pictures to stay because they have both bought ranches out near Al Jolson's. . . . Ann Southern's sister, Bonnie Lake, has composed a song and sold it for "Girl of the Golden West" . . . Kate Smith is toying with the idea of trying motion pictures again.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Silk Shades Give a Soft Glow

THERE is subtlety in the light that glows through a silk shade, and many decorators are using them for the room that needs the softness of plaited folds and the mellowness obtained by placing two tones of fabric one over the other.

Two tones of China silk, one to be used for a plain lining and the other for a gathered outside covering will make an attractive shade. Before you buy the material it is best to experiment with samples one over the other trying them both in daylight and over an artificial light. You will also need a roll of silk binding tape matching the top color of the shade. This tape is to wrap the wire frame. And fancy braid either in gold, silver or a harmonizing tone of silk is used to bind the top and bottom of the shade. Use cotton thread to match the outside tone of the silk.

Slip the binding tape off the roll and wrap a rubber band around it as shown here at A. Working from the inside end of the tape wrap the frame as shown at B. The outside layer of silk is put on next. This is gathered both top and bottom and pinned to the wire covering as at C and D so that it is stretched quite tight. Joinings in the outside covering need not be sewed but may be hidden under the folds. This material is sewed in place as at E.

Next, cut a straight strip for the lining and fit it around the outside of the frame as shown here at F. Trim the joining allowing a seam as shown at G. Sew to the frame at the bottom as at H. Trim quite close at the bottom. Turn lining to inside as at I. Slip stitch the joining. Turn in raw edges at top and whip around top of frame. Pin the binding around and then sew it with stitches buried in the mesh of the braid.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables;

Overdone Politeness

From early childhood, the Chinese are taught so thoroughly to mind their own business that they rarely render assistance when a person is drowning, a house is burning or a store is being robbed. In fact, purse-snatching in broad daylight is a common occurrence on the streets of Chinese cities because thieves are fairly certain that no one will interfere.—Colver's Weekly.

Public Paying Off on Accomplishments in Gridiron World

YEARS ago when Democrats and Republicans were still doing business as such, life was considerably easier for a sports writer.

There were only two big leagues, the American and the National. No one had thought at that time to identify the Yankees as a separate organization any more than they had yet conjured up such cute labels as curve-ball league, fast-ball league, hitters' league and pitchers' league.

Situation Is Changed by Irish and Pitt

Only football had anticipated the modern trend. There was, for instance, the matter of properly assorting the coaches. Once that had been easy. You merely put them into two groups, "lucky fellows with jobs in the Ivy league" and "sad agents hoping there would come a day when they would have a pay roll big enough for them to compete with the Ivy league in the higher educational field."

Then the classification changed. Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, two institutions which for years had been doing well enough in preparing young men for the travails of teaching and bond selling, enlarged their scope.

Forthwith the spotlight centered on the two men of undoubted genius who had been responsible for this pickup. With the generosity that is proverbial among newspaper men, the press credited each of them with having a system. Other coaches copied their strategy. Soon it became the habit to refer even to such long-established practitioners as Gil Dobie or Hurryup Yost as followers of the "Warner system" or the "Rockne system."

Obviously there was some error here and there in such groupings, but the general rating was pretty well accepted. One day I asked Rockne if he believed there was any sense in such regimentation.

"No," he replied. "There's only one way to classify coaches or teams either, for that matter. Winners or losers. That's what it all boils down to."

Midway in another football season and knee-deep in gentlemen who are claiming all sorts of new classifications as the result of municipal and state elections throughout the nation, I have been thinking about that reply.

Both Sides End Up by Blaming Teams

I am not entirely satisfied with "Pollyannas" and the "Pity Poor Us" groupings. Actually there is very little difference between the Pollyannas claiming the nicest things are going to happen in this best of all possible worlds and the Pity Poor Us-es whining in advance.

Both sets usually wind up by blaming it all on the team Saturday night. Meanwhile, since opposing coaches and the operators of football pools are cynical men, they have fooled nobody save people who play football pools.

It also returns us to where we started. Perhaps because, like other voices of the people, alumni usually do their darndest in November, I could try the rating once suggested by the lamented sports commentator, Bill McGeehan. This was, "Coaches sure of their jobs and coaches who never say a word even when the music prof flunks the only running halfback left with two legs."

Yet, what good does that do us? Almost immediately we discover that some of the men sure of their jobs are so new to success that they have not yet had real opportunity to make a failure of it. Conversely, some of the boys who have lost everything save the franchise, took their nose dive because they were too smug while at the top.

That brings us back to the Rockne rating—"Winners and losers." True, men who compose the groups often interchange so quickly that it is difficult to tell who is coming and who is going. Yet, with all other things equal there are men who will fumble and men who will go on for touchdowns. The essential difference is there in all sports. Sometimes form holds for a day, sometimes for a season. Anyhow, the public pays off.

And, come to think of it, aren't sports very much like that greater game of politics?

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

ALTHOUGH he started his newspaper career as a sports writer, Henry L. Mencken, the eminent author and critic, now confides he has seen only one sports event in six years. He says that was a combat between two lady wrestlers and, although he was highly entertained when one of them bit the other in the leg, he departed feeling sorry they had not killed each other.

The twenty-year-old Man o' War now weighs 1,375 pounds, 300 more than he scaled during his racing prime.

Add winter occupations of ball-players. Mule Haas operates a tavern in Jersey. Ethan Allen continues to write a book about baseball. Adolfo Luque is raising game chickens in Cuba. Buck Newsom is about to buy a pool parlor down in Carolina. Joe Cascarella is warbling love sonnets over the air waves.

Carl Hubbell's hurry to get back to Oklahoma after the World Series was not because he was greatly concerned about his pecan groves. Although he has been playing the game only two winters the celebrated southpaw has become one of the nation's most ardent golfers. Says his wife tells him he's crazy but he just can't help getting out on the course rain or shine.

Only five of the sixteen hockey Rangers—Davey Kerr, Babe Pratt, Cecil Dillon, Butch Keeling and Frank Boucher—are married. Hughie Goose Gustafson, defense man with the Rangers' Philadelphia Ramblers farm team, was voted the most valuable player in the Northern (Class D baseball) league last summer. He played first base for the Winnipeg Maroons and can also play a hot game of basketball.

Joe McCarthy of the Yankees says a baseball manager does most of his worrying in the winter, usually about things which never happen. Coach Chet Wynne, who played with George Gipp at Notre Dame, claims he does not get the material at Kentucky that he did at Auburn. Also feels that the climate, which is often more of the Mid-West than Dixie variety, works against him.

Tells Why It's So Hard to Pick Golf Winners

Notes on why it's almost as difficult to pick golf winners as it is to get football selections right. Ky Laffoon was 30 pounds overweight last summer. Jimmy Demaret has the smoothest swing in golf but lacks the winning urge. Harry Cooper is sucker money for the bookies because he lets his nervous temperament lick him. Horton Smith just can't get the touch of Eastern courses. Vic Ghezzi is too easily diverted by outside allurements. Jug McSpaden is lost on Florida courses.

Tony Galento, who never uses sparring partners, always bills Manager Joe Jacobs for them anyhow after a fight. His friends insist that one of the first things Middleweight Harry Balsamo did when he started fighting star bouts was to buy a washing machine. Cliff Wilson, Harvard's very good lineman, wanted to go to Navy but missed on the appointment because of some dental trouble. Dave Albritton, Ohio State's Olympic high jumper who will double as a hurdler next spring, is conducting an orchestra this winter. Carl Brumbaugh, new Dodger backfield ace and former assistant to Coach Bezdek of the Cleveland Rams, scored three touchdowns in six minutes against Alabama in 1933.

Henry Armstrong, the featherweight champion, plays the violin and piano and sings in the choir. He likes to bowl, and once was a pin boy. Doctors claim his heart action is slower than normal, and he shadow-boxes six rounds in the dressing room before entering the ring for a fight. Sports writers probably have coined more nicknames for him than for any battler of modern times. He has been nicknamed "Homicide Henry," "Hustling Hank," the "California Comet," "Black Blizzard—Cyclone—BuzzSaw—Windmill—Spider—Terry McGovern." Aside from being a little gentleman, he is the greatest fighter in the ring today.

Harry Gilmore of Chicago was the first featherweight champion, largely because he claimed the title when the class was established and recognized in 1887. How many old-timers remember that Dal Hawkins, usually recalled as a lightweight, succeeded him on the throne? The feather class limit in those days was 118 pounds. After beating Abe Attell in five rounds Brooklyn Tommy Sullivan held the title for nearly four years. Then in 1908 he lost it back to Attell, who kayoed him in four rounds. Louis Kid Kaplan, now a Connecticut insurance man, performed an almost unprecedented feat after winning the title via the elimination tournament. He refused $35,000 for a fight, saying he could not make the weight and would not take money under false pretenses. Johnny Kilbane held the title the longest, 11 years. Eugene Criqui, who succeeded him, was champion for only one month.

Noble Kizer, who will spend the winter at Albuquerque, N. M., expects to return to Purdue in time to conduct spring football practice.

High School Boys Take Home Economics Course

St. Louis.—Making beds, the best use of leisure time, what to do before the doctor comes, and how to run a household on a budget are some of the topics in a home economics course open to St. Louis high school boys.

The course has been introduced into the curriculum with a view of broadening the scope of high school training in line with modern educational trends. The greatest problem is the prejudice with which boys regard home economics.

JUST LIKE DADDY

Old Pop—I don't see anything remarkable about that baby.
New Pop—Oh, but you would if it was yours.

Beans Is Beans

A teacher called for sentences using the word "beans."
"My father grows beans," said the bright boy of the class.
"My mother cooks beans," said another pupil.
Then a third popped up: "We are all human beans."—The Furrow.

That's Different

Clairvoyant—Young man, do you wish to have your future read from the lines of your hand, the coffee grounds or from the crystal?
Youth—I came to ask for the hand of your daughter.
Clairvoyant—Then will you tell me what are your prospects for the future?

More's the Pity
Auntie—I do hope you will like my present. I couldn't decide whether you would like a large check or a small one.
Impecunious Nephew—Any check would be ripping, auntie.
Auntie—Ah, what a pity I bought you a striped tie after all.

Time For Rejoicing

Valet—So the madam has left you? Believe me, I know just how you feel.
Master—Go on, Sparrows, you never felt that good in your life.

PLAYING SAFE

Neverwed—C'mon. Just another round of Jacks. If you go now your wife will have all the more time for a long jawfest.
Longwed—Nope. If I beat it now I'll catch her before she's had time to rehearse a long sustained effort.

FAIR PROOF

TAKE THAT!

Percy — Remarkable, doncher know, that one of my noted ancestors should have died without his head.
Miss Bord—Not as remarkable as that one of his descendants should have lived without his head.

Inappropriate

The storm was increasing in violence, and the captain decided to send up a signal of distress. But hardly had the rocket burst over the ship when a solemn-faced passenger stepped to the bridge.
"Captain," he said, "I'd be the last man on earth to cast a damper on anyone but it seems to me that this is no time for setting off fireworks."

Something Done

Mother (to small son who is going to a party)—Now, dear, what are you going to do when you've had enough to eat?
Little Tommy—Come home.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Some Crust!
Father—When I was a little boy, I always ate the crusts.
Willie—Did you like them?
Father—Of course, I did!
Willie—Then you can have mine.—New York Post.

The Tinsmith
Betty—Do you know what I've just been told? When a girl gets married she must look forward to preparing 30,000 meals!
Beryl—Well, fancy having to open 30,000 tins!
